Capt. Richitt Will Escape Police Trial Board Action

Severe Reprimand Recommended by Eleven Inspectors At Conference

The police hierarchy has decided no charge will be presented against Capt. Anthony Richitt, it was learned yesterday.

Instead, it will be recommended by the inspectors of the Police Department that he be severely reprimanded.

The fate of Richitt, who became embroiled in a feud with Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of police, last March, was decided at a meeting Thursday morning at police headquarters.

The meeting was attended by 11 of the department's 13 inspectors. Absent were Inspectors John R. Jefferies and George R. Wallrodt. Barrett appeared for the conference but did not remain to the end.

A majority of the inspectors present decided there would be no formal charges drawn up against Richitt, who commands the Eighth Precinct.

However, all of them signed a report yesterday, expressing their opinion of the case and requesting that Richitt be reprimanded.

Presumably the recommendation has not yet been seen by Barrett, who left his office Thursday afternoon on annual leave and is not due back until Monday morning.

It had been rumored throughout the Police Department that Richitt would be fined. However, this would necessitate a hearing either before a trial board or Barrett himself and this is unlikely in view of the recommendation of the inspectors.

The disciplinary move against Richitt stems from a fiery blast he leveled last March at Barrett after his transfer by the superintendent from the Third to the Eighth Precinct.

Richitt testified before a congressional committee investigating crime conditions in the District that Emmitt Warring, a gambler, had referred familiarly to Barrett as "The Boss." He claimed before congressional probers that Warring had told him of receiving advance information from Barrett about crime investigation.

Barrett was cleared in an investigation made by Special Assistant Corporation Counsel Daniel B. Maher, who has since resigned his post.

However, the Maher report gave the green light to trial board action against Richitt on charges of rank insubordination, neglect of duty and being absent without leave.

The Commissioners forwarded the report to Barrett and left with him the decision as to whether Richitt would be tried.

After this Barrett announced he would let his inspectors decide what course to take in the Richitt case, but indicated he would not be dismayed if the matter was dropped.

Romanian Plaint On Travel Curb Rejected by U. S.

The United States is rejecting a bitter note from Romania accusing this Government of discriminatory travel restrictions on members of the Romanian legation in Washington, Secretary of State Dean Acheson revealed yesterday.

Acheson charged Romania had imposed on the United States Legation in Bucharest restrictions and harassments that were "more comprehensively severe" than those imposed on other legations.

Last month in retaliation, the Romanians here were told they must not travel beyond 35 miles of the District without permit from the State Department.

Oil and Lead Duties Go Up

U. S., Mexico End Trade Pact; Many Tariff Rises to Follow

The United States and Mexico are ending their reciprocal trade agreement on December 31, 1950. This is an event of much economic importance because it means higher United States tariffs on imports not only from Mexico but a number of other countries as well.

Major repercussions will be felt in oil and lead. Officials said the cancellation will double — from 10½ cents a barrel to 21 cents—the tariffs on about half the oil imported into this country.

This includes oil from Venezuela, the Middle East and other areas as well as Mexico.

Tariffs also will be doubled on lead from Canada, Peru and Australia as well as Mexico, it was explained.

The effect also may be some price increases in the United States on a range from toys to oil.

The State Department, which announced the cancellation of the treaty, said it was done because Mexico banned some imports in order to cope with a dollar shortage, and raised tariffs on many other products because of pressure to protect her own industries.

The agreement, signed in 1943, sharply reduced United States tariffs on many Mexican products. In turn, Mexico gave lower rates to many United States products.

Under the most-favored-nation policy, the United States automatically gave the benefits of the Mexican treaty to other nations. (It has treaties with many countries under which it pledges to give them as good treatment as "the most favored nation.")

Thus, with the termination of the Mexican treaty, the effect will be felt by countries other than Mexico.

Volunteer Aid Embarrasses Crime Group

By Chalmers M. Roberts

Crime investigations were bustin' out all over yesterday, much to the embarrassment of the Senate Crime Investigating Committee.

These things happened:

1. In Kansas City, Mo., the managing editor of the Police Gazette, Nat K. Perlow, spent several hours going over police records of the Charles Binaggio-Charles Gargotta murders of last April. Perlow was identified in one report as helping the Senate committee "in an advisory capacity" while another said he had announced he would open a Missouri office for the Senators.

These stories brought a chilly no "comment" from the Senate committee, beginning with Chairman Kefauver, D., Tenn.) A grinding of teeth also was heard.

Perlow further was quoted as saying there was no doubt the committee would come to Kansas City and make a complete investigation of the murders of the one-time Democratic political boss and his henchman. He added that he found Kansas City a clean town now and he praised the chief o police.

2. In Columbus, Ohio., State Attorney General Herbert S. Duffy welcomed the Senate crime investigators and said that while "I have not yet been formally advised that they're coming," he would "give them our fullest cooperation." Then he explained that he had no criminal jurisdiction unless the Governor orders him to go into a county, impanel a special grand jury and conduct investigations.

This "investigation" resulted from the Washington visit of Gov. Frank Lausche, who, while here this week, told Kefauver he would give him every help. Since the Na-

Anchorage, Alaska, June 23 (AP). Col. J. Monroe Johnson, 72, chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, collapsed this afternoon as he stepped from a plane here after a flight from Tokyo. He was rushed to a local hospital.

The cause of his collapse was not learned immediately. Neither was there a report on his condition.

The colonel was traveling with Defense Secretary Louis Johnson and Gen. Omar Bradley.

Six of Every Ten U. S. Adults Have Seen Television Shows

(Cross-Nation Television Circuit Approved. Page B-13)

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., June 23—Although there were about five and one-half million television sets in operation in May, more than six out of every ten United States adults—or nearly 60,000,000 people—have seen a television show, while about 36,000,000 have never seen one.

Adults were asked:

"Have you ever seen a program of any kind on a television set?"

The vote today and a year ago.

	May 1950	May 1949
Yes	62%	44%
No	38%	56%
	100%	100%

Applying the 62 percent against total United States adult population estimated at 96,000,000, the number who had seen a program up to May, 1950 would be just short of 60,000,000.

The tremendous growth of television can be seen from the fact that in May a year ago there were, according to trade estimates, only 1,600,000 homes with television.

In May of this year a similar trade estimate puts the total at well over five million. In fact, the National Broadcasting Co. estimate for May 1 was 5,800,000 sets.

A high proportion on non-owners look forward to owning a set. These were asked:

"Just your best guess, how long do you think it will be before you buy a set?"

Approximately one person in seven said he expected to buy within a year, while more than one in three thought it would be more than a year.

Martin Hits New Tax Bill As a 'Phony'

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

House Republican Leader Joseph W. Martin, jr. (Mass.) yesterday hit the Administration's billion dollar revenue measure as "a phony tax relief bill, framed in political panic and offered in eleventh-hour desperation."

Martin ripped into the bill following a conference with his House Republican Policy Committee. He made it clear he was speaking for himself and not necessarily for all the members of his group.

A full dress conference of all House Republicans, some of whom have been reported wavering in their opposition to the legislation, has been called for Monday.

Republican members of the House Ways and Means Committee, still undecided on the phrasing of a motion to recommit the bill, sat in on yesterday's policy talks.

Try to Agree by Monday

Martin said they will try to agree on a recommit motion over the week-end in time for Monday's full party discussion. The so-called "balanced" bill, cutting excise levies in a wide field but increasing taxes on big corporations, will come up in the House on Tuesday, under a rule barring any amendments.

Republican members of the Ways and Means group, who have debated among themselves whether it is politically wise to single out the corporate tax increase as a target, declined to divulge details of the policy meeting.

Privately, however, most of them conceded the Administration has the votes to push the bill through the House. What will happen in the Senate is anybody's guess, but Democratic leaders are committed to force it to a vote.

The GOP dilemma on both sides of the Capitol is how to fight a bill that carries a billion dollar excise tax cut that they favor but raises rates on companies earning more than $167,000. Most firms earning less actually get a tax reduction.

Calls Excise Cuts "Grudging"

But Martin found a way to fight it. He termed the excise tax cuts "grudging" and warned that the corporate tax increase passes "the same burden on to the consuming public in the form of higher prices that will result."

"It simply takes the taxes out of the left-hand pocket of the taxpayer's britches instead of the right-hand pocket as heretofore," the House Majority Leader said.

Terming the result "a mere juggling of revenue sources" he said the corporate tax increase was put into the bill for the sole purpose of avoiding a veto.

"Not only does the proposal leave much to be desired as an excise-tax reduction bill, but it places another depressive cloud over business and employment, while giving prices a fresh shot in the arm," his statement said.

"Any graduate economist can tell the White House that corporations compute profits after taxes and not before, and their price scales are adjusted accordingly."

Martin contrasted the bill with the $4,700,000,000 cut in individual incomes taxes voted by the Republican Eightieth Congress.

"That was real tax relief," he said, "and it was the only relief that the poor American taxpayer has had in a generation."

Lodge Block To Arms Bill Withdrawn

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Senate leaders launched a drive for passage of the new foreign arms aid authorization bill yesterday, with one expected obstacle apparently removed.

As debate opened on the $1,222,500,000 second year military assistance measure, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge (R., Mass.) told reporters he was temporarily withdrawing his amendment calling for use of some ECA counterpart funds for armaments.

Lodge said he wanted to restudy and redraft his proposal—which had threatened to provoke a major fight—and will bring it in later. He expressed doubt that it could be ready for submission to the arms authorization bill, but if not could be offered as an amendmen. to later measures carrying actual appropriations either for ECA or military aid

As submitted to the Senate Thursday, the Lodge proposal authorized European nations to use counterpart funds—the local currencies they put up to match Marshall Plan dollars—for military as well as economic recovery purposes.

Hoffman Against Lodge Plan

Paul Hoffman, ECA Administrator, has strongly opposed the Lodge plan, on the ground it would not increase the overall strength of western Europe and would lend support to Communist propaganda that the Marshall Plan aims at preparing Europe for war.

Chairman Tom Connally (D., Tex.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee opened the debate on the arms aid bill yesterday with the plea that "to falter now would imperil all the hard-won gains of the past few years." Urging quick approval, he declared:

"This is no time to quibble over details. You cannot afford to spend time discussing fire prevention methods when a criminal is, at that very moment, setting fire to your house."

Connally said a "recent reliable report" indicates that Russia is spending the equivalent of 45 billion dollars a year for arms. While this may be an exaggeration, he added, the situation calls for "unity" "courage" and "action."

Hitting at suggestions that the United States cut back its shipments of currently available military equipment until new defensive weapons are availabie, Connally said this would be "a serious mistake." For the most part, he declared, these new weapons are not ready and we must now provide the "basic" arms needed for the defense of western Europe.

Before Connally spoke, Senate Republican Leader Kenneth S. Wherry of Nebraska announced that GOP Senators will meet Monday to discuss their stand on the bill.

The Lodge plan to divert some of the counterpart funds to European rearmament has been expected to be a major point of discussion. Wherry said it had substantial support among Republican Senators.

As submitted this week, the amendment would authorize any ECA nation to spend, "in its discretion," any of its local currency account for building up its defenses. The total counterpart funds once represented over five billion dollars, but withdrawals for economic recovery purposes approved by the United States have left about 1.5 billions. However, European powers must put up something like another three billions to match next year's Marshall Plan grants.

Hoover Favored RFC Transfer To Federal Reserve Board

Former President Herbert Hoover personally favored transfer of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to the Federal Reserve Board and the discontinuance of its lending functions, Eugene Meyer, first chairman of the RFC, informed the Senate Committee on Expenditures of the former President's opinion yesterday.

Meyer, now chairman of the board of The Washington Post, wrote to Senator McClellan (D., Ark.), chairman of the Senate Committee on Expenditures. This group has been considering an Administration reorganization plan that would place the RFC under the Department of Commerce. In testimony on June 15, Meyer opposed the plan.

Yesterday he wrote McClellan that he had discussed the matter with Hoover, chairman of the Committee on Organization of the Executive Branch of the Government.

Meyer said Hoover "informs me that in the discussions within the Commission his personal recommendation was for the discontinuance of new business and for transfer of the Corporation to the supervision of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System. The majority of the members of the Commission favored transfer to the Treasury."

Meyer said Hoover particularly called attention to a passage in the Commission's task report urging the Government to "abandon the concept that direct lending to individuals and business concerns is a Government function" except in an emergency situation.

In testimony last year before a Senate Banking and Currency subcommittee, Meyer recalled to McClellan, he opposed extension of RFC resources and powers and recommended discontinuance of the activities the RFC then conducted.

The current proposal to shift the RFC to Commerce, Meyer stated, is "unnecessary and inadvisable." He added that if the RFC is to be consolidated with one of the permanent and existing Federal institutions, he thought Hoover's suggestion for transfer to the Federal Reserve Board was "an excellent one."

Regents Uphold Sproul

Refusal to Sign Involves Both Teachers and Employes

Los Angeles, June 23 (AP).—The University of California Board of Regents today upheld a recommendation by President Robert Gordon Sproul that 157 employes of the University be fired for not signing an anti-Communist statement.

In a session often punctuated with clashes among the regents, the board voted to defer action until July 21 on six other employes Sproul had recommended be fired. The board deferred also action in the case of 73 other non-signers, 62 of whom had been cleared by the Academic Senate Committee on Privilege and Tenure.

Also put off until the July meeting was the rehiring of 11 employes who objected to signing the statement because of religious scruples.

Names of those to be fired were not disclosed.

Some of these, said Sproul, have been cleared by the Government for top-secret positions with the Atomic Energy Commission.

The regents met before a packed audience of faculty members, students and newspapermen. Eighteen members of the 24-member board were present, including Gov. Earl Warren, who hurried back from the Governors' Conference at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. Among other regents present were Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz and oilman Ed Pauley.

Sproul said that 9929 letters were sent to university employes asking them to state as a condition of employment that they are not members of the Communist Party.

There were 9663 letters returned agreeing to the contractual condition.

All the non-signers were given the right to a hearing. Sproul said 157 ignored this right. He recommended they be fired.

Six others, he said, stated outright they would not sign the statement and did not want their cases reviewed.

Silent on 'Isolation' Pamphlet

Franks Declares Britain's Faith in European Unity

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

Sir Oliver Franks, the British Ambassador, assured Congress in an unusual letter yesterday that his Government still believed in European unity.

He said it was vital for Britain to cooperate with her European neighbors, and equally vital for her to tighten her links with the Commonwealth and the Atlantic community.

The Ambassador's letter was an attempt to answer congressional doubts about Britsh policy in the light of the recent pamphlet of the Labor Party's national executive committee.

He addressed the letter to Paul Hoffman, the ECA administrator who had called parts of the pamphlet "deplorable isolationism." Hoffman had promised Senators on June 15 that he would try to get a clarification, and he read the Ambassador's reply yesterday at a closed hearing of the Senate Foreign Relations Committe.

"The policy of the British government is to cooperate with other western European countries and work with them for unity in Europe," the Ambassador wrote.

"This has been the policy of the British government during the years since the war. It is so today. In virtue of history and geography alike, such a policy is a vital necessity for Britain.

"Im carrying out this policy the British Government has worked and is working closely with other western European Governments to develop and accomplish the common purposes which give in-

Mee to Help Find Worthy Choices For Federal Jobs

John F. Mee, a management specialist, was named yesterday as staff director of a "little cabinet" committee set up by President Truman to devise a system of finding qualified candidates for top Federal posts.

The White House said Mee is on leave from Indiana University where he was chairman of management and director of the bureau of personnel relations. He also is a former Indiana State commissioner of revenue.

The cabinet group is working on a plan for finding and cataloguing top-flight executives and administrators. Whenever a high Government post became vacant, Mr. Truman could go down the list for a suitable candidate.

Secret Data Role of Service Left Undecided

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Senate investigators yesterday left dangling temporarily an inquiry into whether John S. Service gave secret military information to Philip Jaffe, editor of Amerasia magazine.

The imputation that the 41-year-old State Department diplomat had done that, and had cautioned Jaffe to be careful in using it, was made late Thursday when Service was testifying before a special Senate subcommittee.

Robert Morris, counsel for Republican members of the subcommittee, intimated such evidence was in the earlier testimony to the subcommittee of two FBI witnesses, who had worked on the 1945 Amerasia "stolen documents" case.

Thursday night, Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.) made the accusation flatly. He said the FBI men had a dictaphone in Jaffe's room in the Statler Hotel in the spring of 1945, and recorded a conversation between him and Service, in which Service passed military information, and did it knowingly.

Yesterday, the matter was to be gone into, but in executive session, on the insistence of subcommittee chairman Tydings (D., Md.).

But in view of McCarthy's open charge, Service's lawyers appealed for a discussion in public, lest the McCarthy accusation rest, unanswered, in the Nation's press. Tydings agreed.

However, once in the presence of the subcommittee yesterday afternoon, the attorneys, Gerard Reilly and C. E. Rhetts, argued it was only fair that the entire transcript or record of the tapped conversation be disclosed.

Service, they pointed out, had

Montgomery Co. Population Rises 95 Percent to 163,829

(Virginia Population Estimated at 3,230,000. Page 9)

By V. R. Montanari
Post Reporter

Washington's population has been spreading into Maryland even more than it has been flowing into Virginia during the past 10 years.

Montgomery County's population has almost doubled since 1940 to a present total of 163,829, according to the official 1950 preliminary census estimate.

The figure was announced last night by Langdon Backus, supervisor of the Hagerstown, Md., census area.

The county has gained 79,917 persons since 1940, just topping Arlington County's increase of 78,200 during the decade, highest for the Virginia suburban area.

The figure represents an increase of more than 95 percent over the 1940 population of 83,912.

The gain, both in numbers and in percentage, is the largest in the county's history. It comes on top of a 1930-1940 increase of 34,706 people, or 70 percent.

While beating out Arlington, Fairfax County-Falls Church on the basis of gain in numbers, Montgomery County's percentage growth in the past 10 years (95 percent) is below that of Arlington (130) and Fairfax County-Falls Church (158).

With the population of the District and of Prince Georges County, whose 1950 figures have not yet been announced, the Washington metropolitan area total will be about 1,475,000, it was estimated yesterday.

This compares with a total of

Truman Kills Postal Vets' Pay Raise Measure

Veto Statement Says It Is Unfair To Other Workers In Federal Service

By Jerry Kluttz
Post Reporter

In a sharply-worded message, the President yesterday vetoed a bill that would have given average annual pay raises of more than $200 to an estimated 100,000 World War II veterans in the postal service.

He told the Congress the bill was based on a "bad principle"; that it was an "indirect" bonus, and that it would discriminate between veterans in the Federal service.

In brief, the bill would have given World War II veterans who entered the postal service for the first time after military service credit toward automatic promotions for the time they served in the armed forces.

The President indorsed that provision in the bill to allow those substitute postal employes who missed out on regular jobs because of service in the armed forces to be promoted to them.

Four Weaknesses

Otherwise, the President said, the remaining provisions of the bill have four basic weaknesses as follows:

1. It's based on the "bad principle of allowing credit for service in no way related to a civil career. It would thus violate the long-established principle of granting promotions or increases in pay on the basis of satisfactory performance."

2. That the bill is discriminatory and would be detrimental to the efficiency of the entire Federal service. Its consequences would be discontent and a demand for similar benefits from veterans in other agencies. The bill would promote veterans over the heads of non-veterans of equal ability and capacity.

3. The bill can't be defended as a veterans' benefit bill because it would benefit only 100,000 of the 900,000 World War II veterans in the Federal service. In addition, World War II veterans appointed after June 30 wouldn't benefit by it, and.

4. The bill would cost a total of 163 millions at a time when postal service is being curtailed in an effort to reduce the huge postal deficit.

The veto was recommended by all Federal agencies that were asked to comment on the bill. The postal employe unions guided the bill through Congress. The veto is expected to be upheld by Congress.

Long-suffering Civil Service officials rarely get sore but they boiled yesterday at reports 100,000 Federal workers would be cut in salary. They hotly denied the 80 Arrested as U. S. Smashes Huge Ring Of Alien Smugglers

By the United Press

The United States Immigration Service has arrested 80 persons, including a member of the notorious Sicilian "Guliano gang," to smash a far-flung alien smuggling ring, it was disclosed yesterday.

An immigration source said the ring was operated mostly by Italians and that 50 have been seized in Detroit alone while others are being held in New York City and elsewhere.

This source said the ring originally operated out of Sicily and that one of those seized in New York was a member of the Guliano gang headed by an almost legendary bandit chief who has eluded Italian police for years.

This informant identified one of the alleged ringleaders as Gaetano Badalmente, said to be wanted by Italian authorities for a long list crimes, including kidnaping and murder.

Full details of the roundup were withheld pending an official announcement.

Justice Department officials refused to comment but informed quarters said the ring has been smashed and arrests are practically completed.

Deportation proceedings already have been started in several cases, it was said.

30,000 Ready To Strike at Briggs Plant

Detroit, June 23 (U.P.)—Briggs Manufacturing Co., a key auto industry supplier, today offered its 30,000 employesa 5-cent wage boost and $100 pensions patterned after the Chrysler settlement.

The CIO United Auto Workers have called a strike for Monday unless their pension and other demands are met.

The company proposal came as State and Federal mediators offered to step into talks to try to stave off a walkout that would shutdown Packard and Chrysler's Plymouth division. Briggs makes bodies for the two companies.

Briggs' offer included $100 pensions after 25 years' service, a 5-cent across the board wage hike, reduction in differential pay rates between Detroit and Evansville, Ind., plants and higher vacation benefits.

The wage hike was contingent on union agreement to a three-year contract with an annual reopening clause.

Meanwhile, Ford Motor Co. workers in a key forging plant at Canton, Ohio, returned to their jobs following a jurisdictional dispute.

The executive board of the CIO Auto Workers approved a walkout against the Hudson Motor Car Co. if future bargaining talks fail to make progress and ordered 30,000 Briggs Manufacturing Co. workers to strike at 10 a. m. Monday.

Chicago, June 23 (U.P.)—Four Western and Midwestern railroads ordered freight embargoes today and some trains were trimmed in the face of a threatened strike of AFL switchmen scheduled for Sunday.

A fifth railroad, the Great Northern, continued to accept freight. It said it would attempt to operate despite a strike.

The other four—the Rock Island, Chicago Great Western, Denver & Rio Grande Western and Western Pacific—planned to stop all operations if a walkout is called.

The Switchmen's Union ordered 4000 members on the five roads to strike at 6 a. m., local standard times, Sunday to enforce a demand for a reduction in the work week from 48 to 40 hours without loss in pay.

If effective, the walkout would tie up service on more than 21,000 miles of track from Chicago to the West Coast. About 60,000 other workers on the roads would be idled and shippers in the area especially would be hard hit.

'Craft Unions' Return At Struck Paper Asked

New York, June 23 (U.P.)—The publishers association awaited replies today from heads of craft unions requested to order their members to cross picket lines at the strikebound New York World-Telegam and Sun.

The association, representing major New York papers, said that if the craft union members crossed the picket lines of the CIO newspaper guild and went to work, the paper would be able to publish.

In telegrams to the union, the association said the refusal of the craft union members to work violated collective bargaining agreements between the association and the unions.

The telegrams went to International Presidents of the Photo-Engravers Union, Stereotypers and Electrotypers Union, International Typographical Union, (all AFL). The International Association of Machinists, and the Independent International Pressmen's Union, which includes the paper handlers. The ITU includes mailers.

CIO Welcomes Questions of Lobby Probe

The CIO declared yesterday it welcomes an investigation of its lobbying activities by a House committee. It condemned any organization which held back information.

The committee studying the influence of lobbyists, headed by Representative Buchanan (D., Pa.), is expanding its original survey of the activities of 166 corporations to include several more business groups and seven labor and farm organizations.

Questionnaires like those sent to the corporations—asking for data on trips to Washington by top officials—went out to the additional groups on June 16. They were mailed to the CIO, AFL, John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers, the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, National Farm Union, National Grange, and National Council of Farmer Cooperatives.

East Germany Renounces Claims To Sudetenland

Berlin, June 23 (AP). — Deputy Prime Minister Walter Ulbricht of East Germany tonight signed away the claims of Sudeten Germans to live in Czechoslovakia.

In 1938 Adolf Hitler, at Munich, by threatening war, won his greatest bloodless victory. Demanding Germans he occupied the Sudeten-Germans he ocupied the Sudetenland fringe inside the Czech borders.

The cession by Ulbricht was forecast on his arrival in Prague Wednesday.

Tonight, the Soviet - licensed news agency said he and Czech Premier Antonin Zapotocky had signed a declaration recognizing as "permanent and just" the expulsion of 2 million Germans from the Sudetenland since the war.

The German renunciation seemed likely to provoke a wave of protest among Sudeten Germans living as refugees in west Germany. They have charged they were expelled "ruthlessly" and have been campaigning for a return to Czechoslovakia. Refugees in east Germany are unable to voice their wishes.

Renunciation to German claims to live in the 10,000-square-mile Sudetenland followed by about a fortnight Ulbricht's recognition of the Oder - Niesse border with Poland, slicing nearly 39,000 square miles off Germany.

Tenn. Charges 3 CIO Members With Assault

Morristown, Tenn., June 23 (U.P.)—The State charged three CIO members today with deadly assault against a non-striker at the American Enka rayon plant and the union accused authorities of abandoning "due legal process."

Simultaneously, a spokesman for the CIO Textile Workers asserted that at least 10 cars belonging to strikers rounded up after yesterday's 25-minute gun battle at the mill had been damaged by "scabs and Enka guards."

Sheriff Robert Medlin said that Emory Wells, 25, Fred Jones, 27, both of Rutledge, and Junior French of Jefferson City, Tenn., were named on charges of assault with intent to murder Victor McDaniels. Wells and Jones were in jail but French was still at large.

McDaniel, 30, was one of the three non-strikers wounded in yesterday's gunfire climaxing a 12 weeks strike that began routinely enough in a walkout for higher wages but since has had international repercussions.

Troopers brought in more than 100 CIO members in raids on their headquarters and a hotel yesterday but all except 10 had been released after questioning.

Milk Strikers Reject Terms at Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh, June 23 (U.P.)—Striking dairy workers tonight rejected a proposed settlement of their 15-day strike and dashed hopes for an immediate end to the Pittsburgh milk famine.

A jammed mass meeting voted down an offer of the Greater Pittsburgh Milk Dealers Association which represents 67 dairies in the Pittsburgh area.

The offer was worked out yesterday and today by the negotiating committee of the AFL Local 205, Milk and Ice Cream Salesmen and Dairy Workers and the dealers association. It was submitted to the rank and file tonight without recommendation.

Details were not made public immediately.

End Making Excuses, Driscoll Tells GOP

Atlantic City, N. J., June 23 (AP).—Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll of New Jersey today urged the Republican Party to do away with excuses and tell the Nation "we're back in business again."

Driscoll opened a two-day "shirt-sleeve" meeting of Republicans from Maine to Florida at the Claridge Hotel with an admonition that "playing with Communists or with centralization of government leads to slavery."

The Governor called for "a strong, unified party in which it is possible to be progressive for the welfare of the people and be sound and conservative when spending other people's money."

Driscoll, who has been mentioned as a possible Republican candidate for President in 1952, said:

"The Democratic Party has bluntly and frankly admitted it does not know how to govern our country during a period of prosperity except by taking the road to bankruptcy — deficit financing, staggering debt, high taxes on people with small as well as large incomes."

When asked later at a news conference if he still objected to the way Senator Joseph McCarthy (R., Wis.) was conducting a probe into alleged communism in the State Department, Driscoll said:

"I still feel the methods employed are very important and that McCarthy is using a baseball bat instead of a surgeon's scalpel."

Republican National Chairman Guy Gabrielson launched the party's 1950 vote-getting campaign today with the assertion that Americans "wholeheartedly agree with the objectives" of Senator Joseph McCarthy of Wisconsin.

McCarthy has "received great support in the country generally," Gabrielson told newsmen before the meeting convened.

Truman Flies Home Today For a Rest

President Truman will fly home to Independence, Mo., today for a "back-porch rest" with his family.

White House Press Secretary Charles G. Ross said Mr. Truman will leave aboard his personal plane immediately after dedicating the huge new Friendship International Airport near Baltimore, Md., at 11 a. m.

He will spend the entire week-end at his home in Independence, and return to Washington Monday afternoon.

"He will make no public appearances and no speeches," Ross said. "He just wants to go home and sit quietly on the back porch for a little rest."

Accompanying him will be his military aide, Maj. Gen. Harry M. Vaughan, his Air Force Aide, Brig. Gen. Robert B. Landry; his personal physician, Brig. Gen. Wallace Graham; his private secretary, Miss Rose Conway, and Assistant Press Secretary Eben Ayers.

Europe Bores Son Of Diplomat; Asks Truman for Recall

By The Associated Press

President Truman got a complaint from Paris yesterday about his nomination of a new Ambassador at Large, Milton Katz.

It arrived by mail from 11-year-old Johnny Katz, the son of the Economic Cooperation Administration official who has been named to succeed W. Averell Hariman in the $25,000-a-year position.

In careful typing Johnny told the President:

"We were all set to go home after two years abroad. Tonight my mother told us my dad has to take over Ambassador Harriman's job and we can't go home except for a two-month visit this summer.

"Now I ask you, 'How would you like to be able to go home to America only once, for two months, in two years?'

"My brother, Bobby, and I would be much happier if you could let us go home to stay. Can't you possibly find another man to take his job?"

Mr. Truman has not yet seen the letter, but it was unlikely he would hunt up another Ambassador. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee yesterday approved Katz's nomination and sent it to the Senate.

French Version Voids Patent of Hollywood 'Bras'

Denver, June 23 (AP).—There was a French predecessor to a Hollywood-made uplift type brassiere and as a result the Hollywood patent is invalid, the Tenth United States Circuit Court of Appeals ruled yesterday.

The decision voided a patent infringement suit against Tulsa, Okla., firms for selling a brassiere known as the "quest-shon" or "spin top" brassiere.

Judge Alfred P. Murrah's opinion, concurred in by two other judges, noted:

"It is not clear whether this particular brassiere created the stylish trend in accentuated breast contours or whether its success was merely attributable to a bolder era.

"But in any event, we are convinced that when the patent in suit is considered against the background of the prior art it amounts to no more than the skillful arranagement of elements or features well known to the crowded arts."

Judges Sam G. Bratton and John Pickett concurred.

Judy Garland, Better, Still Being Watched

Hollywood, June 23 (AP).—Judy Garland's agent today said the 29-year-old singer is being watched closely and is "constantly under medical attention." She is improving, however, he said.

Miss Garland fled from a movie conference Monday at her home, ran into a bathroom and, her studio said, scratched her throat superficially with a broken glass in a distraught moment.

Graham, Smith Face N. C. Primary Today

Raleigh, N. C., June 23 (AP).—North Carolina's two Democratic senatorial candidates today pitched into their final appeals to the voters who wil lchoose between them.

For 12 hours tomorrow—6:30 a. m. to 6:30 p. m.—voters in 1990 precincts will ballot to decide whether Senator Frank Graham or Willis Smith, Raleigh attorney, will get the nomination. In North Carolina, the Democratic nomination assures election.

Graham, who yesterday completed four days of personal campaigning in eastern North Carolina, turned today to the populous Piedmont area for his campaign windup.

The tour closed with a rally tonight in Greensboro.

Smith will make his closing speech at a rally tonight in Raleigh.

In the first primary, on May 27, Graham received 303,605 votes, about 5600 short of a majority in the field of four candidates. Smith, who ran second, with 250,222 votes, announced on June 7 he was exercising his right to call for a runoff primary. At stake is the four-year remainder of the term of the late Senator J. Melville Broughton.

Senate Unit to Probe Primaries in 4 States

North Carolina's senatorial campaign spending will be investigated "possibly before the end of this week," Senator Gillette (D., Iowa) said yesterday.

Gillette is chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on Elections which earlier yesterday announced plans to look into senatorial campaign expenditures in North Carolina, Florida, Pennsylvania and Illinois.

Later Gillette also said the committee would look into reported expenditures by the States Rights Party in South Carolina's senatorial primary campaign, now under way.

Gillette told a reporter "no investigators have been sent into North Carolina, but they will be sent within the next week, possibly before the end of this week."

Gillette also said that "no official complaints have come to him from either the Graham headquarters or from the Smith campaign headquarters."

House Group Cites Nelson for Contempt

Contempt proceedings against Communist Organizer Steve Nelson were voted yesterday by the House Un-American Activities Committee because he wouldn't answer questions dealing with atomic espionage.

Representative Harrison (D., Va.), emerging from a committee meeting, also told reporters that the committee is going back over a period of several years to examine testimony of about 30 other witnesses who haven't responded to questioning. The committee has a new general policy of pinning contempt citations on such witnesses.

Harrison said all five committeemen who attended the session voted to ask the House to cite Nelson. If this is done, the next step will be to ask the Federal district attorney to prosecute.

testified he could not recall giving any military secrets, or the gist of the conversation. He has firmly denied passing any secrets—he said he knew none—but pointed out that in any talks about China with Jaffe it was almost certain the military situation was discussed.

It was an established rule of evidence, Rhetts, argued, that when a witness could not recall something referred to, and that if "something" was available, it should be disclosed to the witness. Rhetts said he did not want some other person's appraisal of the conversation, if the whole conversation could be secured and heard or read too.

Tydings Seeking Record

Tydings heartily agreed. He said it would be "unfair and non-American" to make public what was apparently only two lines of testimony by an FBI witness. He had requested the FBI for the full record or transcript, but had so far been refused, he said. Nevertheless, he stated, he would again seek to get it and "hope" he would have it by next Monday.

He scheduled a closed hearing on Monday for Service at which time a decision would be made, depending on the FBI action in making the tapped conversation available. The expectation was that Tydings would get his hands on the full conversation.

Morris accordingly did not question Service on this matter but went on, for the most part, to an interrogation of Service's relationship with a long list of other people, most of whom have been accused in one way or another of being Communists.

Service said he knew most of them, but generally his acquaintance with each was slight. In each case, in response to a question by Morris, he said he did not have any indication that the person was a Communist.

Long Statement by Morris

At the end, Morris launched into an extended statement to the effect that it was remarkable that Service, whose job had consisted in dealing with Chinese Communists, did not know or suspect that these acquaintances were Communists too.

Service, more flabbergasted than angry, attempted to point out that none of the people named had ever been proved to be Communists. One had been cleared by a departmental loyalty board, he said, another has been employed ever since the war in behalf of Claire Chennault's air line, with close connections with the Chiang Kai-shek Nationalist government, and one had been an avowed Trotskyite, reviled by the Stalinists.

The implication, however, was that Morris considered each person he named was, indeed, a Communist, on the basis of the testimony that various accusers had given.

In another development yesterday, at the end of the Service hearing, Senator Lodge (R., Mass.), a member of the subcommittee, said that it will be "impossible" for him to determine the guilt or innocence of 81 State Department employes tagged as Communists or sympathizers by Senator McCarthy.

Lodge said a sample reading of the loyalty files on the accused individuals convinced him no clear-cut finding is possible. He said it would be a waste to spend more time on the files and renewed his demand that a nonpartisan commission be created to investigate security matters.

Truman Finds Ship For 600 Stranded Student Tourists

By the United Press

President Truman has come to the rescue of 600 students who were stranded in New York when the Coast Guard ruled that their chartered Norwegian cruise ship Svalbard was a "firetrap."

White House Press Officer Eben Ayres said last night that the President has arranged for the students to go to Europe aboard the refugee ship General Ballou if they will repay the Government and no commercial ship is available.

The students may get a bargain, too. They were planning to pay $310 for the round trip fare aboard the Svalbard. The White House didn't say how much it would cost them on the General Ballou, but a similar deal fixed up recently for 106 displaced persons from Shanghai will cost the refugees only $240 round trip.

Pike's Nomination Held Up; 3 Given Committee Okay

The Senate Atomic Energy Committee yesterday approved the nominations of three members of the Atomic Energy Commission for new terms.

The nomination of Acting Chairman Sumner T. Pike, of Maine, was held up. Senator McMahon (D., Conn.) told the Senate a hearing on Pike's reappointment has been requested by Senator Hickenlooper (R., Iowa).

The committee, headed by McMahon, recommended that the Senate confirm Gordon Dean, California, for a three-year term; Thomas E. Murray, New York, two years; and Henry Dewolf Smyth, New Jersey, one year.

In Des Moines, Senator Hickenlooper said he understood the committee would take up the Pike reappointment on Tuesday and said he would be there for the meeting.

"I haven't announced my personal position yet on the Pike nomination" the Iowan said.

One on the Aisle—

Boots and Saddles, Red-Blooded Fans!

By Richard L. Coe

THE CAPITOL'S "A Ticket to Tomahawk" seems to be spoofing the Westerns, but, oh, Twentieth Century-Fox, why couldn't you have done it sooner?

For after the long diet of open spaces heroics, of deep-dyed villainy on horseback, of Indians on the warpath and of charter rights in those numberless States west of the Potomac, this dogged reviewer can no longer take lightly a humorous approach to such.

My reflexes are too conditioned to take such matters anything but seriously. I have licked the Dalton Boys, the James Boys, Billy the Kid and Jimmy Ringo. I've ridden the prairies with Randolph Scott, Robert Taylor, Taylor Holmes, Home-on-the-Range, John Wayne, John Payne, Gene Autry, Forrest Tucker, Tim Holt and everybody in Hollywood EXCEPT Adolphe Menjou.

I've forded rivers and cricks and I've saved Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, Missouri, Kansas, California, Washington, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Colorado and Utah for the Union. I've brought cattle and hosses, dance hall girls and teachers, oil and all religious denominations to the frontiers. Do you wonder I take the Open Spaces seriously?

And now, Twentieth Century-Fox, you want me to laugh at an attempt to put in a Colorado railroad that will take the trade away from the stages and so bring progress to the frontier! And you want me to smile at a heroine who can shoot and yet be a deputy sheriff! The only gals who could shoot in the Old West or help their men lick the opposing party were Belle Starr and her worshipers.

Oh yes, indeedy, it's a mighty nice idea Mary Loos and Director Richard Sale have whipped up in their story for Dan Dailey and Anne Baxter to act out. They do it handily, too, and it's fun to hear an Indian talk show biz talk, but, believe you me, it's all too late in the day for my conditioned reflexes.

As a result I sat solemnly at the Capitol taking it all in the way Hollywood has taught me. I was shocked at so capable a heroine, appalled by so lazy, philosophical a hero. I nearly jumped out of my skin when Connie Gilchrist was so bold as to suggest that her dance hall girls would be complimented to be called dance hall girls. I was downright mortified to see Walter Brennan without whiskers and there was a sad little lump in my throat when darksome, handsome, wicked Rory Calhoun tumbled to his death in a rock-strewn gorge.

That's the way I've been conditioned, and when I saw folks around me smiling and evidently having a pretty good time watching all these unfamiliar tricks, I felt pretty bad, I did. Went down the street to Johnny's, I did, and had a dozen rye-on-rocks, I did and now I'm feeling better I am.

You people poking fun at Westerns—d'ye wanna set a man crazy?

THE CAPITOL'S stage bill is good fun because the people on it are mighty sure of themselves . . . Jack Durant comes on for a laugh right at the start of his monologue on matrimony . . . Ada Lynn, stopped the night show with her above par material, two comic songs effectively delivered . . . Vic and Adio, two boys from Rio, show that Brazilians have a comic style even for tumbling . . . The DeMattiazzis have a novel doll-dancing act, the finale of which would spoil its mystery for you . . . And Roy Roberts, that newcomer to the Capitol band pit, lets go with that full baritone which rings the rafters.

EMPTYING monkeys into their new cage in the children's playground of E. M. Loew's Drive-In Theater on the Richmond hwy., Manager Don King the other day was startled out of his wits to have one slip through his fingers and head for the woods . . . He had to give up the chase and figured he'd never see the wee monk again . . . Till reports from Groveton, 3 miles north of the theater, came of a monkey that had come out of the woods . . . Don managed to press his claim above countless others because he had monk's brothers and sisters to prove he knew the family at least . . . But what he's wondering is: how come 20-odd monkeys escaped their cages in northern Virginia on one afternoon?

HURD HATFIELD, the worldly Apollodorus of Olney's "Caesar Too Frequent," and Cleopatra," is not of the West Virginia feudin' family; he's a Hyde Park, N. Y., Hatfield and darn glad to be back East, thank you, after five years movie-making in California . . . Hurd got his basic training with the Chekov School and in England; his aim is character acting and he's had at least one mighty good offer for next season . . . In his final California years—he's a ranch owner—he took to ceramics and, by gosh, made all his Christmas presents in his own kiln . . . Which just goes to show you that a hobby can be a very good thing . . . Because he can seem to be what he is not, I've a notion he's got a sound career ahead as an actor after that starring start that would have defeated many.

ACTORS' COLONY, Baltimore's experimental group, is completing a run of two novel short plays, E. E. Cummings' "Santa Claus" and Christopher Fry's "A Phoenix Too Frequent." The group performs tonight and tomorrow night at 100 East Monument st.

THE K-B Theaters are cosponsoring the annual "Little Miss America" and "All American Boy" contests which lead toward small fry tripping to Hollywood . . . Details in the lobbies of the Apex, MacArthur, Flower, Atlas, Naylor and Senator!

Pine to Decide Contempt Cases Of 3 Film Writers Thursday

Federal Judge David A. Pine refused yesterday to release three more Hollywood film writers accused of congressional contempt and said he will decide their cases Thursday.

They are Albert Maltz, Alvah Bessie and Samuel Ornitz, they were among the "Hollywood 10" who refused in 1947 to tell the House Committee on Un-American Activities whether they were Communists.

Judge Edward M. Curran said yesterday that he also will decide Thursday on identical charges against film writers Ring Lardner jr., Lester Cole and Adrian Scott.

Two others, Director Edward Dmytryk and Herbert Biberman, may appear Monday before Judge Richmond B. Keech who had to delay their hearings because of other business.

Electrical Association Named in Inditcments

New York, June 23 (U.P.)—The Eastern Electrical Wholesalers Association of New York and 26 individuals and corporations were indicted today on charges of restricting the sale and distribution of electrical supplies.

A Federal grand jury charged them with violating anti-trust laws. The Government also filed a civil suit asking that the association be broken up and other steps taken to prevent any possible continuance of the allegedly illegal activities.

Yugoslavs Say Bulgars Move Troops

Belgrade, June 23 (NYHT).—Bulgaria is whipping up its campaign against Premier Marshal Tito to alarming proportions by overt moves of a military nature, the official Yugoslav news agency, Tanjug, asserted tonight.

The pro-Soviet Bulgarian regime is creating a "war atmosphere" by movements of troops "in readiness for battle" towards the Yugoslav frontier, the agency charged. It said an attempt was being made to excite the Bulgarian people to a "state of tension."

A marked increase in the "provocative" character of Sofia's anti-Yugoslav acts has been noted in the last month since two "former active commanders of the Soviet army" assumed the posts of minister and assistant minister of national defense in Bulgaria, the agency declared.

Along with these activities, Bulgarian Communist propaganda is presenting Yugoslavia as the "organizer of an aggressive bloc in the Balkans which endangers the security of Bulgaria and the eastern European countries," the agency continued.

Secretary Acheson yesterday warmly defended the choice of Charles M. Spofford, New York lawyer and former brigadier general, to be American deputy on the North Atlantic Treaty Council.

He said it would be wholly wrong to interpret the appointment as a "down-grading" of the authority of the new deputies. Comments from London, from unnamed diplomats there, had complained that Spofford was utterly unknown and that some one with greater prestige should have been chosen.

Without mentioning the London reports, Acheson told his press conference that Spofford was a highly qualified man. The Secretary said he could think of no one who could do the job better and few who could do it as well.

He said he had known Spofford a considerable time, both as a member of the bar and as the head of the Army's civil affairs organization in the Mediterranean during the war. He argued that Spofford had had great experience in dealing with the military men of some of the same nations he would have to deal with in matters of North Atlantic defense.

Spofford finally accepted the post of North Atlantic deputy yesterday, after a talk with Acheson, but it will be several weeks before he can reach London to start his new duties. As he will be chairman of the new group, this means that the deputies probably cannot get to work until late in the summer as a sort of executive committee of the foreign ministers.

Anti-Santa Claus' Pastor Is Target Of Ouster Move

Kansas City, Kan., June 23 (U.P.).—A group of Baptists, who have the Christmas spirit even in June took their minister to court today on the ground that he is "anti-Santa Claus."

One of the witnesses against the minister was Charles Bye, a railroad employe who has played Santa Claus for seven years at the annual Christmas Eve program of the Argentine Baptist Church.

Bye testified in District Court at the opening of a suit seeking to oust the Rev. Del A. Fehsenfeld. Bye said Fehsenfeld once called the story of Santa Claus "a dirty lie."

Moreover, said Bye, the pastor once charged "some of you can't handle your own children or handle your own home. I call on the wrath of God to strike you dead."

There was no report of fatalities.

Bank of America Restrained From 22 Acquisitions

San Francisco, June 23 (AP).—A Federal temporary restraining order was issued today against the Bank of America to prevent its acquisition of 22 California banks with combined deposits of more than 150 million dollars. The acquisition from Transamerica Corp. had been announced only a few hours earlier.

The order was issued by the Ninth United States Circuit Court of Appeals at the request of the board of governors of the Federal Reserve System.

The petition also named Transamerica.

The Federal Reserve System presently is hearing charges of tendencies toward monopoly in commercial banking against Transamerica.

The petition for the order said the bank acquisitions, if consummated, would deprive the board and the court of jurisdiction in the monopoly case.

Thorp Refuses Post In U. N. Offered by Lie

Lake Success, June 23 (AP).—Secretary-General Trygve Lie disclosed today he had asked Assistant Secretary of State Willard Thorp to head a proposed technical assistance administration in the United Nations, but that Thorp had refused.

Lie said he also had been turned down by Sir Ramaswami Mudaliar of India, former president of the U. N. Economic and Social Council.

Kirk at Lake Baikal, Goal of Siberian Trip

Moscow, June 23 (U.P.).—The United States Embassy received a telegram from Ambassador Alan G. Kirk today reporting his arrival on the southern tip of Lake Baikal, easternmost point of his 5000-mile tour.

After several hours sightseeing at Slyudianka, the party will leave by train for Novosibirsk, then fly to Moscow, returning June 26.

British Ship Opens Fire on China Planes

Hongkong (Saturday), June 24 (AP).—The Royal Navy today announced the frigate Hart opened fire yesterday on three fighter planes—presumably Chinese Nationalists—off the Communist port of Swatow.

It was the first time the British navy had retaliated against plane attacks since the Nationalists imposed their blockade on Communist ports last year.

The navy said the Hart began shooting after an "unprovoked attack" on the British tug Fresty Moller.. The announcement said no damage or casualties were suffered by any of the ships.

The Chinese Nationalists yesterday reported an exchange of fire with what they called a gunboat. This presumably was the same incident. The Nationalists did not identify the nationality of the "gunboat."

Coalition Suggested Against Rep. Powell

New York, June 23 (AP).—Manhattan's Republican leader, Thomas J. Curran, today suggested to the Democrats another coalition aimed at defeating a left-wing representative in Congress—this time Adam Clayton Powell, Harlem Negro clergyman.

Powell had Democratic and American Labor Party nominations when he was reelected two years ago.

Curran urged the same kind of coalition as the recent Republican-Democratic indorsement of James G. Donovan, independent Democrat, against American Laborite Vito Marcantonio.

East Germans Call New Rally Of Red Youths

Berlin, June 23 (AP).—East German Communist leaders today called on West German youths to stage a giant peace rally in the Ruhr.

Orders for the mass actions were directed principally to young and adult Communists in North-Rhine-Westphalia, where the Communists suffered a disastrous defeat in last Sunday's elections.

The East German leaders announced the "peace" rally will be held in the industrial Ruhr Valley September 30-October 1 and called for "masses of hundreds of thousands of young peace fighters" to participate.

Fire Destroys Merrick Home In Upper Marlboro

The home of Mrs. George B. Merrick, whose late husband was trial magistrate at Upper Marlboro, Prince Georges County, Md., was destroyed by fire about 9:30 p. m. last night.

Firemen at Marlboro reported that seven fire departments responding to the general alarm were unable to save the huge, rambling two-story frame structure on Marlboro pike at the entrance to Marlboro, so rapidly did it burn.

Furnishings of the home occupied by the judge and Mrs. Merrick before his death last March were also destroyed. There was no estimate of damages last night, and cause of the fire was undetermined.

Firemen said no one was at home when the fire started.

Pool Delegates Unlikely to Act On Plan Now

Paris, June 23 (NYHT).—Negotiations on a western European coal and steel pool will be adjourned next week while delegates return to West Germany, the Netherlands, Italy, Belgium and Luxembourg to consult their governments.

They are expected to take with them the text of a French document outlining the functions, powers and organization of a proposed high authority—a supranational executive body to operate the pool.

The document, originally drawn up as a draft treaty, was submitted today to a meeting of French Cabinet ministers, including Prime Minister Bidault and Foreign Minister Schuman.

It was decided that since the fate of the French Government itself is to be decided Saturday by a vote of confidence in the National Assembly, the government could not approve such a draft treaty.

Newsman's Query If He's a Red Draws Lie's Fire

Lake Success, June 23 (U.P.).—United Nations Secretary-General Trygve Lie today replied to a question whether he had ever been a Communist by saying: "My God, there should be some respect for my integrity."

Lie was reminded at his news conference of charges this week by Senators William F. Knowland (R., Calif.) and Styles Bridges (R., N. H.) that he was a tool, if not an actual ally, of the Communists.

"Are you now or have you ever been a Communist," a correspondent asked.

"I don't think he should transfer this conference down to that level," Lie snapped back. "I suggest you ask the Prime Minister of Norway or his predecessor or the leader of the Conservative Party in Norway if I am a Communist and you will get the answer."

"But Mr. Lie," the newsman persisted, "what's wrong with asking you?"

Lie angrily retorted with his suggestion there should be some respect for his integrity.

British Unveil Giant Airplane

London, June 23 (AP).—Britain unveiled its newest and biggest military transport plane today—the GAL 60.

Few details were released. Among those kept secret were its range and the number of troops it could carry.

The four-engined plane has a wing span of 162 feet, is 99 feet long and stands 33 feet high. This is considerably smaller than the biggest United States military air transport, the XC-99, a transport version of the B-36 bomber.

Paris Cabinet Likely to Fall In Vote Today

Paris, June 23 (AP).—The fall of the French Government was threatened today in the midst of Schuman plan negotiations.

Socialist members of the National Assembly announced they were deserting the government Saturday on a vote of confidence on a technical question of increased salaries for government workers.

On the surface, Foreign Minister Schuman's plan to pool coal and steel resources with five other west European countries had nothing to do with the Socialist decision.

Defeat of Premier Bidault and the resignation of the cabinet, including Schuman, in the middle of the negotiations would be a heavy blow to the plan, however.

Spanish Duchess Quits 8-Year Fight To Restore King

Madrid, June 23 (AP).—Red-haired Maria Luisa Narvaez, fiery Duchess of Valencia, announced her retirement today from the crusade to restore the Spanish monarchy.

She explained that doctors had ordered her to take a long rest and treatment to recover from ailments occasioned by imprisonment.

The 34-year-old woman, who for eight years has been one of the most persistent thorns in the side of Franco's Government, served a year in prison in 1948-49 and was fined one million dollars pesetas for pro-monarchist activities.

Her fourth and last arrest was in February. She was accused of attempting to undermine the government, but was acquitted by a military court.

The recommendation of her doctors was made, she said, prior to her trial, but the announcement was delayed so no one would "suppose I am bowing before injustice, nor trying to obtain sympathy from the court."

Who will run on the Republican ticket in the next Presidential election? See Edward T. Folliard's story tomorrow in the Sunday Washington Post.

Horizontal Growth

We fail to see any cause for disappointment in the report that the preliminary census figure for the District of Columbia is only 835,000. To be sure, a larger population has been generally estimated, and it must be admitted that a vast number of Americans have a mania for mere bigness. With due allowance for those factors, we think that the people of the District should congratulate themselves on the fact that the growth of the District has been held down to 25 percent in 10 years. The problems incident to absorbing roughly 172,000 new residents in a single decade ought to be sufficient to take the edge off the disappointment of even the most enthusiastic local boosters.

More important is the suggestion in this preliminary census figure that the city is resisting overcongestion in the restricted District of Columbia. A great number of the newcomers and many of the older residents are moving out to the suburbs. Our city planners are trying to save Washington from becoming a dismal metropolis of tunnels and canyons. The census findings indicate that in some measure they are succeeding. That is cause for a lift of spirits and for redoubled efforts to keep the city growing horizontally rather than vertically.

Super Not Inter

The old question of who controls the controllers was posed at the opening of the Schuman conference. What was asked was how the high supernational authority in charge of the coal and steel industries in western Europe could be checked by the people in whose name decisions were taken. In the initial memorandum there was a reference to the United Nations, but this was hardly in keeping with the European character of the industrial union. It was clear at that time that the Council of Europe, with added authority, was better suited to the supervisory role that Mr. Schuman had in mind.

This is how the new French suggestion at the Schuman conference may be resolved. The French say that they would agree to the empowering of a European parliamentary assembly with a check over the coal and steel controllers. There is no such body at present in existence, however. The Council of Europe as now constituted does not have the necessary power; it has two organs, a committee of ministers and a consultative assembly, and the assembly can only recommend to the committee of ministers. So that the French by their device would seem to be trying to put teeth into the consultative assembly, as well as suggesting a way of making the coal and steel combine responsible to a popular organ.

The main thing is that the French "concession" is no concession of principle. The principle is the surrender of national sovereignty over the key commodities that are the crucial points of conflict in Europe. The authority would be supernational, not international. The parliamentary assembly in the French view must be equally supernational in order to work with the controlling authority. The French will need all the support they can get to realize this revolutionary concept. All the forces of the status quo will be ranged against them. They will be besieged to fall back on a battery of words with which the status quo is buttressed: international, coordination, cooperation, collaboration, and what not. It was with such words that Europe went into its last blood bath. What is needed now is a new set of words that connote action—words like executive and direction. This is what the French want and mean, and we hope that they have the leadership to produce an agreement among their neighbors on that priceless ingredient of their imaginative proposal.

Mr. Spofford's Post

Mr. Charles M. Spofford has been appointed American member of the deputies who will be the permanent representatives in Europe of the North Atlantic Council. He is unknown to Washington, and the name will have no propaganda value in Europe; but he seems to have the full confidence of Secretary Acheson and High Commissioner McCloy, especially Mr. McCloy, who put a high value on the war work he did as Assistant Chief of Staff of the Supreme Allied Command in the Mediterranean. In private life he is a successful lawyer in New York. It is a very important assignment for Mr. Spofford. No doubt the other members of the North Atlantic Council will make him chairman of the deputies because he is the American representative. Thus he will have a role of executive responsibility in dovetailing and forwarding the civilian and military development of the North Atlantic Community. He might have been left out on a limb in Europe, but the appointment of Mr. Averell Harriman as Special Assistant to the President removes that danger, and, indeed, will help Mr. Spofford considerably.

What Service Did

The relation between Mr. John S. Service and the editors of Amerasia is one thing, the work that Mr. Service did in China quite another. This work was as patriotic as it was meritorious. Senator McCarthy's attacks on Mr. Service's performance as political intelligence officer first to General Stilwell and then to General Wedemeyer are simply contemptible. Mr. Service's reports were those of a diplomat of skill and industry and prescience. Some of them are summarized in the White Paper. From these it appears that Mr. Service's dominating idea was to revitalize the war effort of the Chinese. This was always flagging because of the inner Nationalist vs. Communist conflict in China. Part of the time they fought, part of the time they kept suspicious eyes on each other. In the mind of the Chiang Kai-shek government the war against Japan, Mr. Service wrote, was secondary in importance to its own preservation in power.

It was a situation almost exactly analogous to that in Yugoslavia. Here Tito and Mihailovitch were in contention, and Mr. Churchill, when he decided to support Tito, said that the British "should judge all parties and factions dispassionately by the test of their readiness to fight the Germans." Mr. Service entertained pretty much the same approach. However, there was an important difference. In Mr. Service's view it would be "both unnecessary and unwise" to withdraw recognition from or stop military supplies to Chiang's government. So much for the McCarthy charge that Mr. Service sought to torpedo Chiang Kai-shek. What Mr. Service saw with a vision that did him great credit was that Chiang was engaged in torpedoing himself by turning his back on political and economic reform. Without a change on Chiang's part the future, Mr. Service warned, would belong to the Chinese Communists. In a prophetic note he foresaw that the people who would benefit from this situation would be the Russians.

Not all the 125 reports from Mr. Service are summarized in the White Paper. But Mr. George F. Kennan read them all carefully at the behest of the State Department Loyalty Board. And he reported that ". . . the general level of thoughtfulness and intellectual flexibility which pervades the reporting is such that it seems to me out of the question that it could be the work of a man with a closed mind or with ideological preconceptions, and it is my conclusion that it was not." We for one take Mr. Kennan's word for it. Mr. Kennan was the man who from Moscow was struggling to offset Ambassador Hurley's rose-colored views about Russia. "Russian words mean different things than they do to us," he wired to Washington, in warning against concurrence in Hurley's acceptance of Stalin's assurances on China. Then he made this prophetic observation:

> Actually I am persuaded that in the future Soviet policy respecting China will continue what it has been in the recent past: a fluid resilient policy directed at the achievement of maximum power with minimum responsibility on portions of the Asiatic continent lying beyond the Soviet border. This will involve the exertion of pressure in various areas in direct proportion to their strategic importance and their proximity to the Soviet frontier. I am sure that within the framework of this policy Moscow will aim specifically at: (1) Reacquiring in substance, if not in form, all the diplomatic and territorial assets previously possessed on the mainland of Asia by Russia under the Czars. (2) Domination of the provinces of China in central Asia contiguous to the Soviet frontier. Such action is dictated by the strategic necessity of protecting in depth the industrial core of the U.S.S.R. (3) Acquiring sufficient control in all areas of north China now dominated by the Japanese to prevent other foreign powers from repeating the Japanese incursion. This means, to the Russian mind, the maximum possible exclusion of penetration in that area by outside powers including America and Britain.

No wonder Ambassador Hurley goes into high dudgeon when he reads such dispatches, and lends himself to the dirty business of the McCarthy cabal. The country owes a great deal to its wartime career officials in Moscow and Chungking; their only crime is that they were prematurely right.

What Type Commission?

Widespread acceptance of the general idea of a commission on national security, as suggested by this newspaper on May 22, is evidenced by the current discussion as to what form the commission should take. Opinions differ as to details, and there is some misunderstanding of what we proposed. For example, G. Ernest Bourne, assistant librarian of the Senate, expresses the view in a letter elsewhere on this page that we are "dwelling in a dream-world of theory and academic thinking to suppose that Congress would abdicate its responsibilities . . ." Of course, we had no thought of Congress relinquishing its investigative powers. The editorial of May 22 made this clear in the following sentence:

> This commission is not proposed in order to put an end to congressional committees, but rather to create an atmosphere in which they can again provide the country with the light it needs.

Mr. Bourne writes in support of the Thomas-Ives bill, which would set a pattern for special investigations such as would be carried out by a special commission composed of two Senators and two Representatives, one from each party and three members appointed by the President. Special bodies of this sort would undoubtedly prove useful in many instances. The TNEC and the Hoover Commission, for example, rendered invaluable service. Mr. Bourne rightly emphasizes the desirability of legislators sitting on such bodies. But that argument carries weight chiefly when the task to be accomplished is primarily a legislative one.

As we see it, the function of the proposed commission on national security would not be primarily legislative. No doubt various legislative proposals would grow out of its work, but its basic job would be to create public understanding. It would give us "a trustworthy, 'unpartisan' statement of the salient facts affecting our security." It would elevate the level of debate and make it possible for Congress to weigh its legislative problems in an atmosphere less charged with emotion and hysteria than is the air surrounding Washington at present.

No one type of investigating body can serve all purposes, as Senators Thomas and Ives made plain in offering their bill for mixed commissions. Routine inquiries can best be conducted by the standing committees of the House and Senate. Major legislative problems, such as reorganization of the executive branch, can be advantageously assigned to the mixed type of commission contemplated in the Thomas-Ives bill. But there is also a definite place for unpartisan presidential commissions of the type that we have suggested to look into our over-all security problem. It would be a pity if overly rigid thinking as to forms of organization were to stand in the way of a survey of our security problem by a high-minded presidential commission.

How We Get Our Judges

The sentencing of Judge Norval Harris of Indianapolis to 60 days on a penal farm for contempt of the Indiana Supreme Court gives special point to Governor Dewey's remarks the other day at the Governors' conference on incompetents and drunks on the bench. This is said to be Judge Harris' second sentence to prison. In addition to his contempt, he is charged with drunkenness and with issuing a fraudulent check. He was cochairman with Paul Robeson of the committee for defense of the 11 Communists convicted in New York. People all over the land may well ask how such a man gets on the bench and manages to remain there.

Governor Dewey linked the low caliber of some State judges with the elective judicial system. Not only does Indiana elect her judges, along with most of the other States. Indiana and Georgia show up in a recent survey as the two States where "judges customarily engage in partisan politics." In those two States judges make a practice of serving on partisan committees and of making political speeches. A judicial atmosphere can hardly be expected to prevail in these circumstances.

The tragic fact is that most of the States elect their judges, with varying degrees of exposure to partisanship. Only in Massachusetts, New Hampshire and the District of Columbia are all judges chosen by appointment, although appointment is the general rule in Delaware, Maine and New Jersey. In Rhode Island trial judges alone are appointed, and California and Missouri have modified appointment plans in operation. A survey completed last year for the National Conference of Judicial Councils showed a high degree of satisfactory service in States where judges are chiefly appointed. Two thirds or more of such judges on trial benches were satisfactory to the bar and the public. Judges were considered fair, independent and impartial. In some of the States where judges are chiefly selected by election, however, one half of the men on the trial bench were found to be unsatisfactory. In many of these States some judges were reported to be arbitrary and subject to political or personal influence. This is a heavy burden to lay on a system of justice.

Realizing that the elective system is strongly entrenched in most States, the House of Delegates of the American Bar Association some years ago recommended a plan under which judicial vacancies are filled by the Governor from a list of highly qualified lawyers prepared by a board. At the end of a certain period the judge so chosen has to stand for election on a ballot giving voters a simple "yes" or "no" choice as to whether he should stay on the bench. Only Missouri has adopted the plan, although California has a similar system. Certainly it has many advantages over the subjection of judges to the pressures of politics. So long as the system by which judges are selected force them to be politicians, the quality of justic will suffer.

JOB LOOKED IN HEAVEN

For J. R. E.

Job looked in Heaven
And he saw
Where stars slow circling
To God's law

Shot fire-flames,
Past his farthest sight,
Into the deep abyss
Of night.

Within his soul
The prophet weighed
What order
Heaven's fires obeyed—

Light-bringers
Since the world had birth.
(O brightness beaming
On our earth!)

Job looked in Heaven
And was shown
The stars illumining
God's Throne.

Disarmament Conditions

There is a growing feeling here and in Europe in favor of disarmament. This is very understandable because any armaments competition is likely eventually to lead to war and because in our time the armaments race has become too expensive—expensive in money (taxes), liberty (Government powers for preparedness), and risks.

But to avoid detrimental consequences of this mood, it seems necessary to keep in mind the conditions of disarmament.

Disarmament must be universal. No nation can be allowed to stay outside.

Disarmament must be thoroughly controlled by a supranational agency; such control must be permanent.

Control will not work when nations remain partially armed. Only a totally disarmed country will extradite nationals suspect of having violated the international law about disarmament or other requirements of peace.

In addition, it is easier to achieve agreement on total than on partial disarmament. The endless discussions at the Geneva Disarmament Conference about the appropriate method of partial disarmament and the inability to agree upon any common yardstick for the comparison of relative military strength were caused by the simple fact that any partial disarmament implies a change of the mutual power relations.

The consequence of total disarmament is that a supranational force (mainly an air force) will be necessary to police the world, and an agency without veto to see to it that international law is kept, if necessary by force. In other words, disarmament is only possible as one of the pillars of the edifice of world government, but world government need not extend beyond the function of keeping peace.

President Truman, in his address on June 9, said that our military measures are defensive only, and that "we look forward to the day when international forces under the United Nations will keep the peace of the entire world." It is good that he proclaims this goal. But the day will not come by looking forward to it and, in the meantime, blaming the Russians. Leadership requires something more.

"Present Danger"

For the past two Sundays the American Broadcasting System has been offering a program over its networks entitled "Clear and Present Danger." This program is a documentary narration designed to explain the purpose behind the President's loyalty order.

In view of all of today's cries of "Red-baiting" and "witch-hunting," this program was, and is, extremely apropos.

No clear-thinking American can deny today that this Nation is faced with a unique danger. It should be clear to everyone, regardless of political party, that our Government was, and perhaps still is, a nesting ground for agents of a country that has already enslaved nations of Europe under the guise of "people's democracies." That such was the case is borne out by the very fact that the President himself ordered these investigations, let alone the startling number of arrests and convictions of persons in responsible places.

I do not think, however, that intelligent Americans agree with the methods of investigation as are currently being carried on by Senator McCarthy. He has been repudiated by such men of his party as Governors Warren of California and Duff of Pennsylvania, and Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire.

But the evidence is irrefutable. The danger is, as the ABC program stated, "clear and present." I believe that every American should hear this program.

Chinese Sympathies

All during the period when the Chinese radicals were battling the Nationalists, our State Department sent no arms, financial or other aid to the revolutionaries. All our aid of every kind went to the Nationalists.

There is evidence also that the revolutionary Chinese asked our State Department repeatedly for certain technical aid connected with their program for developing the territory they had conquered. It was only after such requests were ignored by us that such aid was sought and received from the Russian government.

With twice the military equipment and vastly superior fighting forces, the Chinese Nationalists were driven clear off the Chinese mainland. The only explanation for this result is that the Chinese people were behind the radicals.

In view of this unquestioned record, what basis really can be there for the claim that our State Department policy was to aid the Communists, rather than the Nationalists?

Why doesn't somebody give the people more of the facts.

Defense Of Japan

In his letter of June 18, "Neptunus" gives us three reasons why we should withdraw from Japan in accordance with the Lippmann doctrine.

If, without our bases, "Neptunus" thinks that Japan would be free from attack, no matter how much she tried to remain neutral, then Neptunus has failed to learn anything from history.

If we do not feed Japan during the next war, the only other source would be Siam and Indo-China. Without ships of her own this would be impossible. This means that if we desert Japan in the face of enemy attack, Japan would have to trade with the enemy or starve.

Japan could be defended against atomic attack just as easily as Alaska or Detroit, or the Pacific Coast. Will we abandon those places for the same reason? The element of surprise can be eliminated with proper devices.

Japan is not Wake, Guam or even Okinawa. It is not one of the hundreds of Pacific atolls, which, because they could accommodate only a few thousand defenders, we could easily overwhelm. Japan has 80 million potential defenders in an area the size of California. This is a far cry from "a slender chain of vulnerable fixed bases."

"If Japan is untenable as a base, how about Guam, which "Neptunus" cites as the base from a mobile carrier defense of the non-Communist Far East. How could we hold Guam as a base for such defense, against atomic attack, if we couldn't hold Japan? I grant the effectiveness of carrier defense, but why abandon Japan and then have to defend her against occupation by the enemy solely by sea and air.

"Commission Proposals"

I have just read your June 16 editorial relative to the investigating commissions proposed in the Senate last week. As one who actively assisted in the development of the bill and did much of the research work behind it, I feel compelled to answer the constructive criticisms your editorial writer advanced. He has failed to consider certain aspects associated with the general idea.

First, let me assure you, however, that your May 22 editorial, "The Road Back to America," was not the inspiration behind the bill introduced by Senators Thomas and Ives. Both these Senators have been thinking along these lines for some considerable time. The May 22 editorial came out about at the halfway point in our background work. The first draft of the bill had already been prepared.

The commission type of investigation, as all students of government and public affairs knows, is nothing new and has been widely used, in ad hoc form, for many years. One of the basic ideas underlying the Thomas-Ives bill was simply to provide a continuing and standardized system which would be immediately available whenever Congress wished to use it. If your editorial writer could have had the opportunity to read the explanatory memorandum printed in the Congressional Record June 15, pages 8732-8734, following Senator Thomas' remarks, he would have had a better idea what is really contemplated, and he would not have made the statement that the commission's usefulness must necessarily be limited in scope. I therefore suggest a careful reading of this memorandum.

Secondly, and more important, is the failure of The Washington Post (and I say this constructively, too), in sponsoring its presidential commission plan, to take a realistic view toward these investigating problems. It is dwelling in a dream-world of theory and academic thinking to suppose that Congress would abdicate its responsibilities, assuming (and it is a broad assumption) that it could constitutionally do so. The very nature of things being what they are in our political world requires Congress to have first-hand information on subjects which may require legislation.

There are many people who would fear that much of the work of a presidential commission, such as The Post suggests, would have to be repeated by a congressional committee before Congress would act upon the commission's recommendations. To say that members of Congress are "disqualified for the assignment . . . if only because they will ultimately participate in disposing of what the commission proposes" is to disregard many historical precedents which need not be cited here.

The Thomas-Ives bill (S. 3775) was drawn up in a way that conceivably could appeal to Congress and its well-founded traditions. The Post proposal would never get through. One has to be practical in such matters. The Post idea would be fine if it would work, but it would not.

I am sure the sponsors of S. 3775 would welcome your active support of their proposal, and I fully believe you will extend it when it is realized that it is impossible to have Congress act on a "nonpartisan" basis, as opposed to a "bipartisan" approach. The two-party system is too strongly entrenched in our political traditions and habits.

'Warmonger' Defense

By Malvina Lindsay

Fumbling the Ball

"HISTORY WILL probably record among its major tragedies," said the flying saucer scientist, "that in 1950 the American people, for all their supposed advancement, were still fighting wars almost wholly by technology."

I found this astral visitor writing—via a ghost—a $2 a word piece for a national magazine. In the few months since the dramatic arrival on a New Mexico desert, a refugee from a planet about to be destroyed by war, he had traveled widely studying "Earth beings,"—also mastering the American idiom.

"You're not as smart as I first thought," he said bluntly. Naturally you're far behind my planet technologically. But I had thought you were going places in this idea stuff."

"But," I protested, "we're making great strides in social science, in human relations."

"Then how come you've let an opponent supposed to be on the crude side grab this so-called peace ball from you? You're being built up as a warmonger all over the world."

"That's just Soviet propaganda!"

"All right. And what's your latest counter weapon? Just a report you're spending 300 million dollars to start a hydrogen bomb. How many more signatures will that pile up on this peace petition for disarmament your rival is circulating in Europe?"

"We can only protect western Europe by being strong," I pointed out.

"I'd be the last one to carp at weapons. Technology's been my god too long. All I'm asking is why aren't you smart enough to beat your opponents in the think field? You're sticking to the old scare techniques."

"BUT THE world ought to know our whole program's aimed at peace."

"Why? You don't say so loud enough."

"We say so on the Voice of America. But it gets jammed by the Russians. We have a fine information service. But the Communists won't let their people read our stuff."

"You don't say! And your country, rich, powerful, inventive, able to make an atom bomb, to plan a hydrogen bomb, to design new fantastic weapons, to perform miracles of industrial production, can't do anything about that! You haven't the invention to overcome this jamming, or the ingenuity to get your story to those forbidden to read it. You can spend billions on bombs and airplanes, yet you can't spend enough to devise and build powerful radio communications around the world or to blanket the planet with leaflets, posters, picture magazines, movies that might grab the offensive in the think war.

"Naturally I'm a materialist," went on the visitor, "but even I can see that this think stuff is the big bet on the future. Yet why is your country, which boasts of its idealism, so weak in advertising its peace efforts? Didn't the Secretary of your Air Force say just the other day that your country's moral position would be judged only by the vigor with which it pushed its efforts for peace?"

"Well our officials are always saying we'd negotiate peace if the Russians would only—"

"But all I read or hear in your country seems to be about bombs, germ warfare, atomic defense, plans of strategy for the next war. I notice your rival's publications are making plenty of noise about those peace petitions."

"WELL, OUR country has made disarmament proposals in the United Nations. And just the other day 11 members of Congress came up with some new ones."

"Who knows about them? I thought your country was so smart on publicity, salesmanship, public relations."

"It's easy enough to talk peace," I retorted. "It's actions that count. There's our Marshall Plan, Point IV, all the relief we've sent abroad."

"That's a waste of money unless you get the idea across you're aiming at peace. Anyway, are you so smart in your deeds? Are you bold enough in your peace moves compared with what you're doing with weapons? Look at your tons of stored grains. Other surplus foods piling up to rot. People starving in places where allies would count in future. A great goodwill for your country still hanging on in Communist China according to your two fliers who spent 18 months there as captives. And a famine on. Wouldn't it be cheap at any cost to get your surplus food to people who need it—meanwhile advertising well your action?"

"But you see," I explained, "we could never, never send food to people who disagreed with us politically. And if we talk too much about wanting peace we'll be thought weak.

"I suppose so" said the visitor wearily. "For the moment I forgot myself. I thought I had moved on in the universe. I guess I've only traveled in a circle."

Congratulations on the conspicuous position on the front page of the story in your June 10 issue on two deaths caused by automobile accidents.

War Talk

By Marquis Childs

How Rumors Get Started

WITH THE forthrightness and the forcefulness that have characterized his direction of ECA, Paul Hoffman the other day hit out at the "inevitable war" psychosis. As he said in his speech to the Governors at White Sulphur, to talk about an inevitable war is to play right into the hands of the masters of the Kremlin.

Childs

It lets them monopolize a peace offensive while they quote the war talk in this country as proof that we are big, bad imperialists bent on armed conquest of the world. At the same time, Hoffman pointed to another phase of the "inevitable war" mentality.

That is the effect it may be having on our economy here at home. There is reason to believe that many Americans are buying more and buying earlier than they normally would in the belief that war may prevent them from buying at all.

How much this has contributed to the present boom one can only guess. But it is unquestionably a factor. Chairman Leon Keyserling of the President's Council of Economic Advisers now says, that the Nation is at the highest levels of postwar prosperity, exceeding the previous highs of 1949.

Hoffman told the Governors that he had an automobile business in Los Angeles that experienced a few weeks ago a sudden rush of customers. In checking, Hoffman reported, it was discovered that the explanation was a rumor that the Cadillac plant had been converted to the building of tanks. Therefore, buyers were playing it safe and getting a new car while they still could.

RECENTLY, a letter from a reader in Iowa taxed me with representing the country as complacently accepting the inevitability of World War III. My correspondent, a substantial citizen in the community, placed the blame on the Government. He cited in proof of this three reports:

1. The Government was about to buy back an ammunition plant near Des Moines acquired by the John Deere Co.

2. Former employes of a bomber plant at Omaha had been asked to stand by for almost immediate reopening of the plant.

3. Other ammunition plants in the Midwest were to be reacquired by the Government.

After an exchange of letters, my correspondent decided to investigate these reports. He found that they had very little basis in truth. The Government has no interest in former ammunition plants. The notice to former employes in the bomber plant was merely routine preparation for a possible future emergency.

This would indicate that the type of rumor Hoffman referred to is widespread throughout the country. It is a phase of the boomtime atmosphere that has sent Americans on an extraordinary buying spree.

THE RESPONSIBILITY of Government for this psychology is two-fold. In part it is unavoidable. Planning for the successful prosecution of a war if it comes is a paramount responsibility.

Any government that failed to plan in view of the present world situation would be suicidally remiss. This means lining up former bomber-plant employes who would be available if and when the worst should happen. Some critics feel that Washington is not doing nearly half enough of this kind of planning.

On the other hand neither are the blustering statements made by such highly vocal gentlemen as Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson. Johnson is given to saying that we can lick the Russians before breakfast with one hand tied behind our back. That kind of bluster serves no good purpose and it does feed the war psychosis.

In a somewhat different classification are the official statements to Congress in connection with requests for arms and economic aid to back up the Administration policy of containing communism through strength. On the theory, apparently, that the American people must be scared to death in order to get any action, these statements have often been highly alarmist in tone—the Communists will get you if you don't watch out.

It is time for all of us, both in and out of Government, to learn to live as calmly as possible in a dangerous world. Security in the old complacent sense is gone forever.

To the degree that it is fanned up by unnatural and panicky buying, the boom is harmful. It can come down in a dead-stick bust. And that is playing even more directly into the plot of the bosses of the Kremlin who want above everything else to see their predictions of internal disaster for the West come true.

Crime Probes By Volunteers

tion-wide race wire service, Continental Press, has headquarters in Cleveland, an Ohio angle to the Senate investigation is likely, though nothing specific has been announced to date.

3. In St. Louis, a Senate committee investigator, George White, one-time Treasury narcotics investigator, announced he had wired the committee for help because he found conditions in Missouri "too big" for him to handle alone. Kefauver said he hadn't seen the request but that a thorough job would be done and open hearings would be held in Missouri in due course.

One committee member, Senator Wiley (R., Wis.), who already had charged that "certain outside influences" which are "connected with the Democratic political organization" had been pressuring the committee, yesterday jumped on the committees work to date. As he stood up to leave a hearing yesterday morning, the Senator said the committee was "running around after mice" instead of getting at the tie-up between politics and crime.

Wiley mentioned the Kansas City murders and the unsolved mystery of the stolen Missouri ballot boxes, both recent themes of Republican orators in the Senate. So far Wiley had yet to identify the Democratic pressure. Kefauver has denied any such thing.

Wiley mentioned the Kansas City murders and the unsolved mystery of the stolen Missouri ballot boxes, both recent themes of Republican orators in the Senate. So far Wiley had yet to identify the Democratic pressure. Kefauver has denied any such thing.

These extraneous matters were plaguing the committee because it has been trying to build up its cases in private before opening public hearings on the main theme of the investigation—the extent of organized interstate crime and its corruptive threat to American politics.

Kefauver told reporters calls for investigators are daily coming in from all over the country. In reply to one question he said he couldn't comment on whether the Senators would move in on Chicago shortly.

Two Officials Testify

A second day of public hearings, meanwhile, produced some new information from Postoffice Inspector Clifton C. Garner and Bureau of Prisons Chief James V. Bennett.

Wiley Sees Political Tie-Up

Garner said the St. Louis gambling firm of C. J. Rich and Co. last year took in up to $500,000 a day on bets and that as far as he knew it was still doing so. The firm's offices recently were raided by State officials and Senator Investigator White has been going over the seized records, some of which have been sent to Washington.

Bennett said the American Bar Association is considering a proposal to add extra Federal taxes on gambling profits made in the 47 States where off-track horse race betting is illegal. Bennett serves as secretary of the bar group's criminal law committee.

Both Garner and Bennett agreed with Kefauver that so-called "comic" books which feature true crime stories play a part in juvenile delinquency.

Bennett presented figures to show an upward trend in the total population in Federal and State prisons; 1939 — 182,000; 1944 — 134,000; 1948—157,000; 1950—165,000. He said that 60 percent of men committed to Federal institutions have previously been convicted of State or Federal offenses. For such crimes as those dealing with narcotics the figure is higher, for income tax evasion and other "white collar" crimes it is lower.

The committee will hear Treasury Department officials at the next public hearing, scheduled for next Wednesday.

Montgomery Gains 95%

967,985 for the same area in 1940 and predictions of about 1,500,000 for 1950. The Census Bureau estimated the metropolitan population on July 1, 1948, at 1,402,000.

Montgomery County's 163,829 population estimate included figures of 6940 for Rockville, more than three times the 1940 figure of 2047 for the town; 1963 for the Maryland part of Chevy Chase; 2159 for Gaithersburg, a rise of 111 percent from 1940, and 1606 for Kensington, as compared with 931 in 1940.

The size of the county's population increase caught county officials by surprise. For example, Blair Lee 3d, vice chairman of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission, recently figured the 1950 population at 145,000 to 150,000.

Frederic P. Lee, president of the county council, said the increase, larger than counted on by the county government, would be taken into account by the council in its budget deliberations.

Lee said the charter form of Government should meet the needs of such a rapid population increase as it is flexible and adaptable. The operating portion of the budget, he said, will have to keep pace with the county's growth in providing more teachers, schools, police and probably more services.

John R. Reeves, Republican member of the House of Delegates, who had estimated the population as 160,000 to 165,000, said the planning agencies and the county council will have to be "realistic" toward the need for housing to take care of the growing population.

Democratic leaders Joseph B. Simpson, jr., and E. Brooks Lee, said the figure was further proof that the country is a good place in which to live and do business.

Montgomery County has grown steadily since 1840. Its most rapid growth has been since 1920, when there were 34,921 inhabitants.

The new population figure does not mean an immediate increase in representation for the county in the State House of Delegates, since it already has the constitutional maximum of six delegates.

Va. Population Reaches 3,230,000 in 20% Gain

Richmond, Va., June 23 (AP).—Preliminary figures for 88 counties and 27 cities, and estimated totals for the 12 missing counties today indicated Virginia has a 1950 population of 3,230,000 residents, a gain of more than 20 percent over the 1940 total of 2,677,773.

On a percentage basis, county population in the 1940-50 period increased by little more than 17 percent, while city population rose nearly 30 percent.

Figures for the area near Washington follow:

Locality	1940	1950
Arlington	57,040	135,240
Fairfax	40,929	98,193
Alexandria	33,523	61,601
Falls Church	2,576	7,529

Press Women Hear Barkley Grill Senators

By Sonia Stein
Post Reporter

Vice President Alben Barkley stole his own thunder last night. Honor guest at the installation banquet of the Women's National Press Club, the veep was scheduled to be quizzed by four ladies of the press on the "Meet the Press" program which originated at 9:30 p. m. from the Presidential Room at the Statler Hotel. But even before he entered into that "feather picking," he had given the club members and their guests a show he couldn't top, when as a result of some accidently smart timing, there appeared to be a half hour wait between the ice cream pie and the radio show. The gentleman from Kentucky leaped to help the ladies in distress, took the chair and "recognized" some Senators from the floor.

Why, he demanded of Senator Russell (D., Ga.), was he still a bachelor. "I regret to learn that you do not read the Washington papers," countered Senator Russell, who has recently been reported in one of them to have a wife and who said he is "now engaged in an effort to locate her."

House Minority Leader Joseph Martin (R., Mass.) got in a lick on behalf of himself and Senator Russell, who he said "had only recently got a real chance" at the ladies. "Up until recently, the Vice President kept all of them away from Senator Russell and me," he explained. The Veep had introduced Representative Martin as a man who had been minority leader, majority leader and who was now minority leader again. "I hope that office may be perpetuated in him," he added.

Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) was called upon to explain the fourth dimension. He was unprepared, he admitted, but was prepared to speak on foreign aid as soon as he found out what side the company wanted him to speak on. "We're usually able to take both sides." The presiding officer made a suggestion: "You argue first on one side and then answer yourself."

Senator George W. Malone (R., Nev.) declined the opportunity to filibuster but he did define a filibuster. "A filibuster is an argument to which you don't subscribe. If you agree with it, it's a profound debate."

Senator John W. Bricker (R., Ohio) was challenged by the Veep because he had been introduced earlier as a man who "looked like a Senator."

"I'm a little concerned about that myself," the snowy-haired Senator said. Then he said he was going back to Ohio where he and Gov. Frank J. Lausche would elect Senator Robert Taft.

Several of the Senators joked about the press club's new fund raising policy which newly installed President Ruth Montgomery of the New York Daily News hinted would be like that of the Smith College alumnae, who "don't care what they do" to raise money, according to Corresponding Secretary Betty Beale of the Washington Evening Star and Smith College.

Earlier, the vice president had pointed out that he was one of the early advocates of woman suffrage and was glad the women of the press had come into their own "and frequently somebody else's."

More Serious in Broadcast

During the radio show (Mutual-WEAM), the Vice President answered serious questions seriously, but usually threw in a little fillip at the end. Asked if he expected to be Vice President after January, 1953, he said he could not answer that but that he would quote a politician who once said, "It's hard to resist the clamor-ment" of the people.

The Vice President refused to say whether he thought Gen. Dwight Eisenhower or Senator Robert Taft would be harder to beat as a Republican presidential candidate, but said that the Democrats "expect to beat anyone who is nominated on the Republican ticket."

He also said in reply to a question, that he did not think that the loss of one liberal Senator, Claude Pepper (D., Fla.) in the recent election indicated a trend away from "liberality" in the South.

Officers Installed

The members of the press who quizzed the Vice President were Mrs. Montgomery May Craig of the Portland Press Herald, who was also installed as a member of the board last evening; Miss Doris Fleeson of the Bell Syndicate and the Washington Evening Star, and Austine Hearst, columnist for the Hearst Syndicate and the Washington Times-Herald.

Other officers installed with Mrs. Montgomery were Mrs. Hazel Kenyon Markel, WTOP program director, first vice president; Miss Marie Sauer, Woman's Editor of the Washington Post, second vice president; Miss Martha Kearney, International News Service, recording secretary; Miss Betty Beale, Washington Evening Star, corresponding secretary; Miss Ruth Gmeimer, United Press, treasurer, and Miss Bab Lincoln, publicity director of the Mayflower Hotel, historian. The retiring president, Miss Jane Stafford of Science Service, was installed as a board member.

Barkley Calls Lausche Talk 'Very Reassuring'

Vice President Alben W. Barkley said last night he had a talk with Gov. Frank J. Lausche of Ohio recently and "what he said to me was very reassuring."

Lausche said during the recent Governors conference at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., that he may vote for Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) in the fall congressional elections.

Commission Hailed for Aid To Veterans

The District Federation of Civic Associations, Inc., last night commended the D. C. Commissioners for their aid to war veterans and criticized the Postmaster General for "a slowdown strike against congressional appropriations."

The federation, meeting in the District Building, commended Senator Matthew M. Neely (D., W. Va.) for aiding in removal of the dog pound from the Randall recreation area.

Resolutions were also passed commending the Metropolitan Police Department, the District Fire Department and the Board of Education.

John B. Duncan, vice president of the federation, reported on housing conditions. Charles C. Beckett, executive secretary of the Washington Urban League, introduced a resolution, which was passed, to request representation on the United Community Services.

The Washington Post was praised for its coverage and interest in the citizens of the District, Secretary of the Interior Oscar L. Chapman was commended for his work in integrating D. C. swimming pools.

The federation, holding its last meeting until September, criticized the present cab pick-up system at Union station, contending race discrimination is possible there.

Woolsey W. Hall, president, read a resolution, which was adopted, requesting the federation's public utilities committee to make a report on Capital Transit practices.

Resolutions were passed praising the Washington Urban League, the National Association for the Advancement of the Colored People and the Interdenominational Ministers Alliance of Washington.

Sanitation Laxity Laid To Fairfax

The Fairfax County government was criticized for bad sanitation conditions in the Centreville district last night at the fourth of a series of public meetings held by a 21-man study commission.

The commission, appointed by the Fairfax Board of Supervisors to study possible revisions in the county's form of government, is asking residents at the meetings to speak their mind on what is wrong with the present county administration.

At last night's meeting of 75 persons at the Centreville School, Dale B. Doane of Centreville said sanitation conditions in the Centreville district were poor because of unsatisfactory sewage, garbage and trash disposal.

Walter Crain, chairman of the commission, agreed that the criticism was justified, but said the supervisors had been unable to find suitable places to dump garbage and trash. When such places are selected, nearby residents raise objections, he said.

Holden Harrison of Centreville, said perhaps the bad conditions were due to the fact that responsibility for sanitation is split between county and State health departments.

In answer to a question from Vincent Rose, David Lawrence, columnist and vice chairman of the commission, assured the group that both the Commonwealth's attorney and the State attorney general's office had ruled a $5000 appropriation to the commission for technical advice was legal.

George W. Kirkley of Centreville then said he felt the supervisors should pay the $5000 directly to the technical research assistants rather than to the commission. Lawrence said the group has not found the technical assistants yet, and no monew has been spent.

A criticism of the proposed county manager form of government, providing that the supervisors be elected at large rather than by district, was voiced by Stuart T. DeBell of Centreville.

Arthur J. Holmaas, of Falls Church, said the supervisors would be elected by the whole county and responsible to the whole county, but each district would have representation by a supervisor.

Fairfax School Group Plans Further Action

Fairfax County's School Emergency Association, formed last year to help put over a recently approved $10,500,000 school bond issue, has decided to stay in existence.

W. Alvord Sherman, president of the group, yesterday said its members agreed not to disband because the county's school emergency "still exists and will require further attention." He pointed out that the original unit was a temporary association with the single objective of promoting the bond issue.

In line with its decision, the association has called a meeting for Monday at 8 p. m. in the Fairfax High School to elect officers and prepare a program.

A 15-member executive committee forms the nucleus for the association. Although it has no formal enrollment, several hundred county residents aligned themselves with it in the program to stimulate interest in the bond issue.

Ball of Fire Lights Southern Sky; Visible 500 Miles

New Orleans, June 23 (AP).—A great ball of fire visible for 500 miles burned for a few seconds high in the southern sky tonight and then glimmered out, leaving a curving trail of glowing vapor.

R. M. Kiser, senior air traffic controller of the Civil Aeronautics Administration here, said the gleaming object was seen from Tuscaloosa, Ala., Houston, Tex., and a plane 250 miles southward over the Gulf of Mexico.

In Jackson, Miss., city fireman Bert Kyzar said:

"It looked like a grapefruit and was spouting fire like a roman candle and was followed by a white vapor trail. It made a loop and then a white light came on."

A. E. Amie, United States Weather forecaster here, said he saw an object of "tremendous brilliance" in the western sky at 7:40 p. m. (CST).

"It was more brilliant than any meteor I have ever seen," Amie said. "It left a long, white smoke or vapor trail, which is something else I have never seen a meteor do. "I never saw anything like it before, and I can't say what it is. How high it was, or how fast it was moving."

Kiser said the fiery body must have been at least as high as "100,000 fee to have been seen over such a long distance."

creased strength and unity to all."

But the Ambassador reminded Hoffman, and indirectly the members of Congress, that "Britain is a power with world-wide interests, responsibilities and commitments."

"Just as cooperation with her western European neighbors and the vigorous promotion of unity in Europe is a vital necessity for Britain," he wrote, "so her associations in the Commonwealth and in the Atlantic Community are also vital.

"The foreign policy of Britain rests upon and draws strength from these vital relationships with Europe, the Commonwealth and the Atlantic Community. It is the aim of British policy so to reconcile these relationships that they perpetually reinforce each other, and by their complementary strengths add vigor and resource to the freeworld."

The Ambassador's letter made no mention of the Labor Party's pamphlet, since he is not the Ambassador of the Labor Party and is not even a member of it.

Nor could it amplify the British government's position on the Schuman plan for the pooling of western European coal and steel industries. The Schuman proposal comes up for debate in the House of Commons next Monday and, under British practice, official statements of policy must be made to Parliament first.

Franks, therefore, had to write the reply to Hoffman on his own authority, and made it clear that it was only an "informal" statement of his views as British Ambassador.

Most of the letter was a review of what Britain had done since 1947 to promote economic and military unity in western Europe.

"The record," said Franks, "shows the constructive and positive part Britain has played in the economic sphere, in matters of defense, and in the new political venture of the Council of Europe."

He cited these accomplishments:

1. Britain took the lead in drawing up the agreement under which the Marshal Plan organization was set up in Paris, and has since "worked in one team" with the other members.

2. Britain was among the first to advocate and carry out the policy of the liberalization of trade in western Europe, with one result that Britain bought almost twice as much from Marshall Plan countries in 1949 as in 1947.

3. Britain has "continuously exerted" herself to enter the European Payments Union, and now thinks she has found her way to reconcile her membership in the Commonwealth with membership in the Payment Union.

4. Britain gave "an immediate welcome" to the Schuman proposals, in the form of statements by Prime Minister Attlee in the House of Commons.

5. Britain took the lead in creating the five-nation Western Union for the common defense, and now has "gladly played her full part" in setting up the wider integrated defense system under the North Atlantic Treaty.

6. Britain has given, loaned or sold at cut rates "well over" a billion dollars' worth of arms and equipment to friendly governments since the war, mainly in western Europe, Greece and Turkey.

7. Britain has also "contributed positively" to the idea of European unity in supporting the Council of Europe, and in trying to make it effective.

Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R., N. J.), who prompted the original request for a clarification, said later that the Franks letter "goes further than any other British statement that I have seen" toward greater unity among Britain and the other western European countries.

He said the letter was "disappointing because it does not answer—and probably could not answer—at this moment," the question of the apparent conflict between the Labor Party executive and the government.

Secretary Acheson told his press conference he was pleased with the Franks letter; he said it stated what he had understood to be the policy of the British government.

story. Apparently this is what happened:

The commission had had a project under way for months toward the use of simpler and more direct language. Ismar Baruch, chief of the Classification Division, did a rewrite on the commission policy in fixing salaries for so-called "mixed" jobs—jobs where the employes in them are required to divide their time on different work. A stenographer who also does clerical work, for example.

Baruch sent his revised (in words only) policy to Civil Service regional offices. He didn't believe it was necessary to have it checked with the three-man commission since the policy had been in effect since 1924 and he proposed no basic changes in it.

But Baruch failed in his objective to make the old policy simple and clear. Several personnel officials became alarmed and a delegation called on Baruch Thursday afternoon. They were satisfied when Baruch assured them the misunderstanding was merely a matter of language. The Civil Service official went further, in fact, and gave them six months in which to recommend changes in his language.

Everyone was supposed to have been happy—and then the scare stories of mass pay cuts.

The Senate yesterday approved the conference report on the bill to benefit 100,000 retired Federal workers. The bill would give them a boost in their Civil Service pensions and survivorship rights. The Williams amendment that would cut the annuities of some retirees was killed.

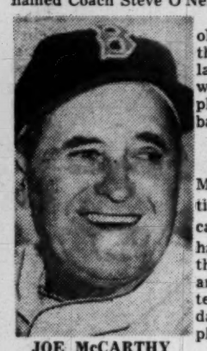
McCarthy Out, O'Neill New Bosox Pilot; Snead Upset; Evers' Clout Whips Yanks, 10 to 9, In 11 Homer Game

Change Made After Joe Scoffs at 'Retirement'

St. Louis, June 23 (AP).—Declaring he is "physically exhausted," Joe McCarthy retired from baseball for the second time today.

Joe Cronin, general manager of the Boston Red Sox, immediately named Coach Steve O'Neill to replace McCarthy as manager.



JOE McCARTHY

STEVE O'NEILL

The ailing, 63-year-old pilot, who had seen the Sox lose 11 of their last 13 games, said when asked whether he planned to return to baseball:

"No, this is final."

The announcement of McCarthy's resignation, made in St. Louis, came shortly after he had scoffed at reports that he was quitting and would rejoin his team in time for Tuesday's game in Philadelphia. He had said:

"Those reports that I'm resigning are really too silly. I'll never quit under fire and you can bet your last dollar that as soon as I'm well enough I'll be back."

Doctor Changes Mind

But his doctor changed his mind for him and advised that his health won't permit him to continue as manager.

"I've resigned, I'm physically tired, physically exhausted," said McCarthy at his farm home in suburban East Amherst.

He was reported ill with pleurisy and flu when the Sox reached Chicago last Tuesday. He remained in his hotel room until yesterday when he took a plane for his home in East Amherst, a suburb of Buffalo.

Following the announcement of his retirement, McCarthy was asked about his plans for the future and he replied:

"Give me a chance to make up my mind. I'll let you know next Monday or Tuesday."

He said he had notified Cronin in Boston this afternoon that he must quit the sport.

His wife said he took the action on the advice of his physician, Dr. Arthur Burkel.

"Marse Joe" became manager of the Sox shortly after the 1947 World Series.

His 1948 club lost out for the American League title in a playoff game with the Cleveland Indians. His 1949 club was beaten out by the Yankees for the league championship in the last game of the season.

'Tired of Beating Brains Out, McCarthy Says

From Buffalo, the United Press reported Joe McCarthy saying he was "disgusted after three years of beating my brains out. I've had enough of baseball, I just don't want to go on any more. When a man can't help a ball club, it's time to quit. I don't have to wish Steve O'Neill the best of luck, he already has it."

McCarthy concluded, "I feel much better mentally tonight, now that the strain is off."

Tigers Score 8 in 4th, Lose Lead, Hoot Wins It in 9th

Detroit, June 23 (AP).—Hoot Evers of the Detroit Tigers smashed a two-run homer in the last of the ninth to turn back the New York Yankees, 10 to 9, tonight in a wild-hitting game marked by a record-breaking 11 home runs.

All 19 runs came across the plate via homers as the Yankees pounded out six while Detroit got five in stretching its American League lead to two full games over New York.

The barrage of four-baggers eclipsed the former major elogue record of 10 homes runs in a game.

Yanks Lead, 6-0

The Yankee power hitters sailed into a 6-0 lead before the Tigers got their night's scoring under way with an eight-run fourth that drove their old jinx, pitcher Tommy Byrne, to the showers.

Relief hurler Paul (Dizzy) Trout's grand slam homer was the big wallop of that inning.

The story of the game was strictly the long ball hitting and this is how it went:

First inning—Hank Bauer, Yankees, hit one with a man on base.

Third inning—Bauer got another with the bases empty, and Yogi Berra hit one with a man on to make it 5-0 for New York.

Fourth inning—Gerry Coleman hit for the circuit with none on to make it 6-0 for the Yankees. All these wallops were off Tiger starter Teddy Gray.

Trout Smacks Grand Slam

Detroit's Dizzy Trout homered with the bases loaded to make it 6-4. Jerry Priddy hit one with none on to make it 6-5 and drive Byrne out. Vic. Wertz hit a two-run homer off relief pitcher Fred Sanford to give Detroit a 7-6 lead, and Evers added another to make it 8-6.

Seventh inning—Joe DiMaggio cut the Detroit lead to 8-7 by clouting one off Trout.

Eighth inning — Pinch hitter Tommy Henrich put the Yankees out in front with a two-run homer that kayoed Trout.

Nats Routed, Easter Clubs Two Homers

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Cleveland, June 23.—In a negative sort of way, the Nats helped make history tonight.

They were party—the injured party, that is—to the longest home run ever hit in Municipal Stadium, one of the pair that flew off the bat of Luke Easter.

The 6-foot-4, Bunyanesque Easter, personally drove in enough runs to beat the Nats but the Indians piled it on to wind up with a soft-touch 13-4 victory for themselves and their 26,629 fans.

The Indians' first baseman tagged one of Rookie Bobby Ross' pitches for a three-run homer over the right-field fence in the third inning, but it developed he was merely warming up for his all-out swing in the sixth.

Joe Haynes was the unfortunate guy who was pitching at that point and Easter had to provide all his own power when he tied into a slow chance-of-pace curve that Haynes tempted him with.

The ball jetted out of the playing field and arched into the upper deck of the stadium's seats toward right center.

Never before had any hitter reached that sector of the upper deck, declared the Cleveland press box historians, who estimated the blow at 475 feet.

As for the Nats' hitting, there was scarcely enough to mention. Bob Lemon restricted 'em to a mere five blows and coasted to his ninth win of the year.

Rookie Ross Chased

Rookie Ross, the kid lefthander from Chattanooga who was making his first big league start, didn't survive the fourth inning. He walked five men and four of them scored. He bequeathed a 6-1 deficit to Haynes.

Haynes couldn't outpitch Ross, much less Lemon. The Indians rapped him for 9 hits and 7 runs before he retired at the end of the eighth.

Ross' troubles began with walks to Lemon and Mitchell before anybody was out in the third inning and that was when Easter swatted his first homer. The kid walked the first two he faced in the fourth, too, and the Indians built up two more runs and a 6-1 lead without the aid of a hit.

After Easter's three-run swat in the sixth lifted them up to 9-1, the Indians battered Haynes for three more in the seventh. He forced over one run, and then was tagged by Al Rosen's bases-full triple to left field.

Pinch-hitter Sherry Robertson started a three-run rally in the Nats' eighth with a single to center field, but it fell short—lemme see, nine runs short.

Burke Eagles 18th To Oust PGA Champ

By Fritz Howell

Columbus, Ohio, June 23 (AP).—Samuel Jackson Snead, the long-hitting and heavy-moneyed shot maker from West Virginia, surrendered his PGA championship today in one of the most startling finishes the classic has ever witnessed.

Eddie Burke, 43-year-old Union City, Conn., professional, fashioned the upset in today's second match play round as he chipped in a 31-foot shot on the par 5 finishing hole at Scioto Country Club for an eagle 3 and a 1-up conquest.

It was a $5000 shot for Burke, younger brother of Billy Burke of Cleveland's Country Club. Billy, just 19 years ago, staged the longest playoff in history—72 holes—to defeat George Von Elm at Toledo Inverness for the National Open championship.

Burke, pro at the Woodridge Country Club in New Haven, Conn., said he was told just before the match by Henry Winski of Michigan City, Ind.:

"Beat Snead and I'll give you a $5000 Cadillac."

Tha's just what Burke, a professional for 25 years, did. A gallery of thousands roared its approval as the black-shirted, white-trousered Burke clamly five-ironed his ball into the cup for the payoff punch.

Four Other Champions Also Eliminated

Snead was not the only champion to fall in today's pair of 18-hole matches. With him went Vic Ghezzi of Inwood, N. Y.; Paul Runyan of Passadena, Calif.; Jim Ferrier, the transplanted Australian from San Francisco, and Bob Hamilton of Landover, Md., all former winners of the professional classic.

Also ushered to the sidelines were such highly rated stars as Sam Byrd, a 1-down loser to Snead in a torrid first-round match; Ellsworth Vines, Pete Cooper, Skip Alexander, George Fazio of Washington's Woodmont Country Club; Dick Metz, Marty Furgol, 1947 Open Champion Lew Worsham of Washington; veteran Al Watrous, and last year's medalist, Ray Hill.

Fazio, 4 and 3 victor over Frank Staszowski, Torrington, Conn., in the morning, was sidelined by Bob Toski, Northampton, Mass., 1 up, in his afternoon match.

After eliminating Jerry Gianferante, Hingham, Mass., 2 and 1, Worsham was defeated by Johnny Palmer, Badin, N. C., finalist last year, 4 and 2.

Still in the fight were some of the tourney tested talent, along with some Johnny-Come-Latelys.

Second-round survivors included such hot shots as Denny Shute, the 1936-37 champ from Akron; Jimmy Demaret, the Texas fashion-plate and laughing boy; Lloyd Mangrum, former Open champ, who has won $8100 this month and now moves in as the PGA favorite with Snead out of the way; Henry Picard, the 1939 PGA victor; Palmer, and the ever-dangerous Claude Harmon.

Along with them are Ray Gafford of Fort Worth, Tex., who gets a crack at Burke in tomorrow's 36-hole third round; Chick Harbert of Detroit, who lost in the 1947 finals in his home town; Bob Toski of Northampton, Mass.; Chandler Harper of Portsmouth, Va.; Henry Williams, jr., of Secane, Pa.; Elmer Reed of Atlanta, Ga.; Dave Douglas, Newark, Del.; Jackson Bradley of St. Charles, Ill., and Ted Kroll of New Hartford, N. Y.

ALL HE'S GOT—George Ker, San Francisco Olympic Club, puts everything he's got into this effort in the shot put yesterday in the National AAU track championships at College Park. He heaved the ball 53 feet, 7¾ inches for the junior division title and set a new record

3 Junior AAU Records Set

Pioneer Club Of New York Team Titlist

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Three records were smashed and New York's Pioneer Club ran off with the junior team championship as the National AAU track and field carnival began a two-day stand at Byrd Stadium yesterday.

Only a handful of fans turned out for the junior section of America's meet of the year, held under ideal conditions, a fast track, sunny skies and hardly a breeze to hamper the runners.

Bill Miller of Shanahan Club, Philadelphia, set a javelin record of 218 feet, 5½ inches. George Ker, 26-year old school teacher from the Olympic Club, San Francisco, put the shot a record 53 feet, 7¾ inches.

And finally, Arthur Bragg, Colored Intercollegiate Athletic Association sprint king from Morgan State, Baltimore, cracked the 200-meter record for one turn with a 21.3 clocking.

The four-year old standard of Panama's Lloyd LaBeach was beaten by a tenth of a second.

Pioneer scored only three first, but packed the field with second and thirds to score 91½ points and won the title for the first time in five years. A distant second with 53 points was New York's Sports Police Association.

Meredith Gourdine, in the 200-meter hurdles, Stafford Thompson in the 400-meter run, and Lawrence Ellis in the 1500-meter run, scored Pioneer Club's first places.

Individual scoring honors were won by Bradley's Roy Grieve, Bragg and Bob Backus of Tufts, with a first and second for 18 points each.

Grieve won the 110-meter hurdles and was second in the 200-hurdles. Backus won the hammer throw and was runner-up in the 56-pound weight heave.

Bragg preceded his record-

Hitch-Hiker Misses Those Car Pickups

A 10-mile practice walk, which he took during his hitch-hiking jaunt from California to College Park, Md., didn't do Tommy Laughran much good yesterday in the AAU 3000 meter walk.

Laughran, 35-year-old San Franciscan, finished dead (figuratively speaking) last in the field of 15. He negotiated the 1⅞ miles walk in 16 minutes. It took him six days and one hour to cover the 3000 miles from San Francisco to Washington. He made most of it by car except for that 10-mile stretch in Wyoming which he covered by foot.

Snider, Cox Furillo Lead 19-Hit Attack

Brooklyn, June 23 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers snowed under the Pittsburgh Pirates, 15-3, tonight and stretched their lead over Philadelphia and St. Louis to 1½ games.

Home runs by Duke Snider, Billy Cox and Carl Furillo paced the Dodgers' 19-hit assault. The Brooks tucked the game away with eight runs in the seventh inning.

AT DELAWARE

DEAR FOLKS: Big show here for the weekend, topped by the $22,500 added Delaware Oaks. It's a big-money day for the horseman with $3000 being the smallest purse offered. Leeds (Charles Town) Riely was here Thursday to watch his Crystal Pass win the second race and to drum up trade for the West Virginia track which reopens on July 1. The B. & O. race special to Delaware is stopping at Laurel on the way back to Washington in ample time for the trotting-pacing set to play the daily double at the Raceway. There seems to be some difference of opinion regarding the condition of Jockey Bobby Mitchell. The track doctor says he should not take a mount for two weeks because he had a slight skull fracture in a fall here. Others contend he is fit and ready to ride, saying that X-rays taken elsewhere show no signs of a fracture. See you on the rail.—Bill.

After Belmont Flop

Hill Prince Favored Today In Aqueduct's Dwyer Stakes

New York, June 23 (AP).—Only five other colts will challenge Hill Prince tomorrow in the $40,000-added Dwyer Stakes at Aqueduct.

The most notable absentee will be Robert J. Kleberg's Middleground, winner of the Kentucky Derby and the Belmont Stakes and Hill Prince's biggest rival for three-year-old honors.

Middleground is sitting this one out. The pair most likely will meet next at Arlington Park in Chicago on July 15 in the $50,000 Arlington Classic. The Dwyer and the Classic both are a mile and a quarter test.

Hill Prince's opposition in this 33rd running of the Dwyer will come from these sophomores:

George D. Widener's Lights Up, Donald P. Ross' Greek Song, Frank Frankel's Noblest and the C. V. Whitney pair of Dooly and Mr. Trouble.

Hill Prince and Mr. Trouble must carry 121 pounds, Noblest 111, and the others 16.

Hill Prince was a disappointment in the Belmont Stakes June 10 when he finished seventh after leading most of the way. Chris Chenery's big Virginia colt dashed to the front but faded surprisingly as Middleground rallied to win the mile and a half classic.

The Mater Romps Home At Delaware

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Delaware Park, June 23.—Count Fleet, retired to a Kentucky breeding farm, continues to send winners postward throughout the Nation. For the second time this week, his get won the feature race here at Delaware Park.

Successful today was Mrs. Esther duPont Weir's The Mater. The 4-year-old filly scampered through the stretch to win by two lengths from George A. Garrett's Mistambo with Mrs. Walter M. Jeffords' Adile third in a field of six fillies and mares.

Ridden by Jimmy Lynch and saddled by Trainer James E. Ryan. The Mater had a scattered backing in a crowd of 8000 and paid a $9.80 win mutuel. She was clocked in 1:44, creditable time for the mile and a sixteenth over a fast track.

Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Roman Candle proved a dud, racing exactly like one. She shot the works with a flash of early speed but the farther she went the less momentum she had and she finished a definite last and in the role of a favorite at that.

Johnny Gilbert who has been riding in rather spotty fashion of late, awoke with two winners in a row on the card. He took the second with Edward A. Luzzie's Bald Hill Boy' at $7.50 and the third with Bobanet Stable's Brazen Brat at $4.10.

Babe Didrikson, Peggy Kirk Gain Western Finals

Patty Berg, Claire Doran Eliminated

Denver, June 23 (AP).—Peggy Kirk, a seasoned amateur from Findlay, Ohio, and Mrs. Babe Didrikson Zaharias, pro from Chicago, won gruelling matches today to gain the finals in the twenty-first Women's Western Open Golf Championship.

Miss Kirk outsteadied Claire Doran of Cleveland for a 2-up margin, while Mrs. Zaharias eliminated a fellow pro, Patty Berg of Minneapolis, 1 up, to go into tomorrow's 36 holes finals.

The winner's 37—38—75 card was one over par in the best golf she has shown yet while Miss Doran's 38—40—78 was well off the consistent par pace she had established in reaching the semifinals.

Tomorrow's finals will be a renewal of an old rivalry between Miss Kirk and Mrs. Zaharias although their last meeting was in 1947 before the Chicago slugger turned pro.

The St. Agnes show ambitiously has scheduled 31 classes for ponies, hunters, jumpers and gaited horses.

The Potomac event follows the pattern of former years with classes for juniors, hunters and jumpers. Working hunters have four classes and the champion will be awarded a challenge trophy, placed in competition for the first time this year by Henry V. Sedy. The champion conformaion hunter with four classes will be presented with the Duration Farm Challenge Trophy, and the highest scoring jumpers in the five jumper classes will receive the Capitol Airlines Challenge Trophy.

setting 200-meter record victory with a second place finish in the 100-meter sprint.

That 100 produced one of the big surprises of the day when an unheralded 18-year-old schoolboy, Jim Golliday of Chicago Catholic Youth Organization, got out of the pits first and stayed there to pos a 10.6 seconds vicory.

His performance was equivalent to a 9.7 for 100 yards since the metric distance is about 110 yards.

House OK Of Senate's Rent Bill Expected

O'Hara Confident Control Extension Will Be Approved Before Deadline

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Representative Joseph P. O'Hara (R., Minn.) yesterday said he feels there is a good chance the House may accept the Senate-approved District rent-control extension bill.

In one form or another, he pointed out, the bill must be cleared by Congress and signed by the President by next Friday to keep controls in force in the District without a hiatus. Friday is the expiration date of the present law.

Two proposals for continuing the rent act are before the House.

The bill passed Thursday by the Senate continues the law through December 31, 1950, and from then to June 30, 1951, it leaves the act in force only upon classes of housing where the Commissioners find shortages to justify keeping controls for that period.

The second plan, prepared by the House District Committee, continues control through January 31, 1951. The decision on controls beyond that date would be left for Congress to make in January.

District Rent Administrator Robert F. Cogswell yesterday said he would have no objection to the Senate-approved bill. He said he would make such a report to House District leaders if his views were asked.

He said he has a "lawyer's question"—not a protest—about the delegation of authority to the Commissioners to make a determination about continuing rent control, as provided in the Senate bill. At the same time, he said, he has a very high regard for the opinions of Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West, who drafted the language of the Senate plan.

Can Delegate Authority

West said he feels the approach provided by the Senate bill involves a sound delegation of power to the Commissioners. He said Congress can properly delegate authority to an administrative agency like the Board of Commissioners, if guides are given for the administrative action.

Representative Oren Harris (D., Ark.), chairman of the House District Judiciary Subcommittee that held hearings on control, said he wants to give further study to the Senate proposal before commenting on it.

A coroner's jury yesterday found both the operator of a bus and an auto driver responsible for the death of another motorist in a three-way collision at 20th and K sts. nw., early Tuesday.

Ordered held for Municipal Court action under the Negligent Homicide Act were Joseph M. Simcic, 21, of 1711 19th st. nw., a Capital Transit Co. bus driver, and Alexander R. Miciotto, 43, 3300 17th st. ne., operator of the Colonial Village Bowling Alley.

The jury deliberated 40 minutes before returning a verdict. Both men had declined to take the stand. They were released under $1000 bond each for arraignment Monday in Municipal Court.

Police said Simcic was driving south on 20th st. and Miciotto east on K st., when they collided at the intersection. Miciotto's car then spun into an auto operated by Heston Simon, 25, of 216 R st. ne., headed north on 20th st.

Simon was thrown from his car, a convertible, and died of a crushed skull and chest. The bus continued on to the east side of 20th st., where it tore off the front of a building, housing the Hammond & Halpern Dental Laboratory. Six persons were injured in the accident.

Witnesses yesterday testified both Simcic and Miciotto were traveling fairly fast when they approached the intersection. Mrs. Catherine Moore, 52, of 12 Rosecrest ave., Alexandria, a passenger on the bus, said the bus driver "was traveling at a good rate of speed."

Another bus passenger, Joseph Criscione, 49, of 66 New York ave. nw., estimated the speed at 25 miles an hour. A taxicab driver, William Beresford, 1734 New Hampshire ave. nw., said he was driving east on K st. when Miciotto's car passed him at "35 or 40 miles an hour" seconds before the crash.

Contempt Penalty Promised

Judge Holds Youth for Mailing Critical Letter Mother Wrote

Because he mailed a letter—which he did not write—criticizing the ruling of a Circuit Court judge, a 19-year-old youth was held in contempt of court yesterday in Montgomery County.

He is Alan R. English of Burnt Mills, near Silver Spring, son of estranged parents who were involved in a maintenance suit before Judge Charles W. Woodward last week.

The critical letter to Judge Woodward was written by the youth's mother, Mrs. Kathleen C. English, 49, who had decided not to mail it on the advice of her attorney. However, her son found the letter at home and mailed it.

"There is no excuse for your action, and I am going to punish you," the judge told young English yesterday. He deferred sentencing.

Judge Woodward told Mrs. English, who was in court, that the writing of the letter was not "of itself a contemptuous act, but the mailing of it was."

Two years ago, Mrs. English was granted $530-a-month maintenance from her husband, Beryl R. English, 57, whom she accused of adultery.

English, former general manager of the county liquor dispensary system and now operator of a Silver Spring filling station, sought recently to have the amount of maintenance lowered, claiming he was losing money in his business.

On June 14, Judge Woodward ordered the maintenance reduced from $530 a month to $250.

The letter was written by Mrs. English after the ruling described a meeting—and quarrel—between young English and his father. The latter was alleged to have said, "I am making plenty of money out of this gas station."

In her letter, Mrs. English told Judge Woodward, "I have lost faith in you."

At yesterday's hearing, Mrs. English testified she had written the letter shortly after the June 14 decision because she was "upset" and "wanted to get it off my chest."

Her attorney, F. Barnard Welsh, told the court that the boy did not realize the case was still in the jurisdiction of the court and added that he had been "upset" by the events.

The boy's father took the stand to deny that he had boasted to his son that he was making "plenty of money."

Judge Woodward said an audit of English's books would be the only way to determine his income. English said he would agree to such an audit.

Experimental Jet Explodes in Air Before Crashing Near Bedford, Va.

Two Washington area men were among three killed Thursday night when a Navy experimental jet plane, making its first transcontinental flight, exploded in mid-air and crashed in flames near Bedford, Va., 200 miles southwest of Washington.

The Navy yesterday listed the dead as:

Lieut. Comdr. Willard A. Sampson, the pilot, who would have been 34, yesterday, of 9631 Howard ave., Bethesda, Md.

Holliday Lee Turner, 41, a civilian employe of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics, of 2748 73rd pl., Kent Village, Hyattsville, Md.

James A. Moore, jr., 26, of Downey, Calif., North American Aviation Corp. pilot who was along as copilot.

HOLLIDAY L. TURNER
. . . dies in plane crash

The plane, an AJ-1 with two conventional engines and one jet engine, was flying nonstop from Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., to the Naval Air Station at Patuxent, Md., on its first long test flight.

A native of Niagara Falls, N. Y., Sampson was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1940

He was a carrier pilot in the Pacific in World War II with 40 combat missions to his credit, and became the commanding officer of Fighter Squadron 83 on the USS Essex. Sampson had been decorated with three Distinguished Flying Crosses, six Air Medals and the Presidential unit citation.

He was assigned to the Piloted Aircraft Division of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics last January. He is survived by his wife, Jean, and two daughters, Jean, 7, and Helen, 5.

Turner, who is survived by his wife and two sons, 9 and 14, was graduated from the Sweeny School of Aeronautics, Kansas City, in 1927.

He was employed at the Philadelphia Naval Aircraft Factory from 1934 until 1938. He came to Washington with the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics in 1940.

Salary Funds Erased From Court Budget

Money to pay salaries for secretaries of two Municipal Court judges has been erased from the deficiency appropriation bill by a joint congressional conference committee.

The decision was disclosed yesterday by the committee's report on the bill, which includes nearly seven million dollars to cover District employe pay increases made last year.

The conferees cut from the bill $8230 that the Senate had added to the $32,400 for Municipal Court approved by the House. Of the amount cut from the bill, $1912 was pay of the two judges' secretaries, and $6318 was to furnish judges' chambers and secretaries' offices.

In testimony to the Senate Appropriations Committee, District Deputy Budget Officer William G. Wilding said that if the secretaries' salaries were not appropriated, the District would be in the red by that much. He said the secretaries had been paid.

Court officials said the secretaries are on the payroll through next week. The House had cut the secretaries' salaries out of the bill on the ground that 12 judges now in the court should share the services of secretaries provided the court when it had but 10 judges.

Dairies Lining Up Farms for Milk Permits

Washington's independent dairies, working against the clock to retain milk sources, were rounding up applications for District Health Department permits yesterday from 300 to 500 nearby dairy farmers.

John F. Hillyard, attorney for Wakefield Dairy, said the forms were distributed by producer representatives in Maryland and Pennsylvania and will be collected to health officials by Monday morning. The farms must pass inspection by June 30 or to stop shipping milk to the District.

Walter W. Burdette, director of the Health Department's Bureau of Food Inspection, said he understood the farms to be inspected are situated chiefly on the Eastern Shore of Maryland and in the Cumberland, Md., area. He said an inspector will be assigned to each area as soon as applications are received.

The rush for permits was set off by: (1) impending expiration June 30 of the wartime emergency order under which milk has been allowed to enter the District from farms not inspected by the Health Department; and (2) temporary approval given by the District Commissioners Thursday to chemical sterilization of dairy farm equipment.

Three independent dairies—Embassy, Wakefield and Highland Farms—had asked that chemicals be permitted instead of the more costly steam process to induce farmers to seek District permits.

They argued before the Commissioners that many farmers would ship elsewhere after June 30 rather than buy steam equipment. The independents said this would force them to buy at higher prices from the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association.

A final decision on sterilization and other proposed new milk regulations will be made by the Commissioners after a public hearing set for July 10.

Dr. Goodloe Is Sentenced To Jail Term

28 Mos. to 7 Years Imposed on Doctor In Illegal Operation, Bribery Conviction

Dr. William A. Goodloe was sentenced to serve from 28 months to seven years in jail yesterday, for performing an abortion on a young Baltimore woman and conspiring to bribe her not to testify against him.

District Court Judge Alexander Holtzoff also revoked the physician's license to practice medicine.

Charles E. Ford, Goodloe's attorney, argued that there were six grounds for appeal and that an appeal bond should be set. But Goodloe was committed, when the judge refused to set bond.

Goodloe was convicted of performing an abortion on Miss Gloria M. Huffman, 26, in his office at 1836 S st. sw. last March.

Miss Huffman testified that a friend of Dr. Goodloe's offered her a free trip to California if she stayed in a place where she could not be "contacted."

Goodloe was sentenced to serve from 20 months to five years on the abortion charge. In addition he received a total sentence of eight months to two years on the charge of bribery and conspiracy to bribe.

In other sentences, the Pannell brothers were ordered to serve from four months to one year and one day for operating a 600-gallon still in a barn within five blocks of the Capitol. In addition each was fined $100 by Judge Holtzoff.

The men, Melvin W. Pannell and Roland Pannell, both of 128 Brown ct. sw., were convicted May 26.

James Tyson, 31, 605 56th st. nw., pleaded guilty to a charge of negligent homicide and was sentenced to serve 90 days.

The charge grew out of the October 16 traffic death at 3d st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw., of Irving Wright, 35, of 1127 2d st. se. Wright was a passenger in a car driven by Tyson when the auto collided with a streecar.

21 Arrested

Three Guilty In Big-Money Dice Game

Three accused operators of a big-money dice game above a Colmar Manor restaurant, raided by Prince Georges County police last April, were convicted of gambling charges yesterday in Marlboro Police Court.

Found guilty by Judge Alan Bowie of setting up and operating a gaming table were Joseph Fratantuono, proprietor of the Romano Inn, 3705 Bladensburg rd.; Albert C. Gibson, 526 Underwood st. nw., and Abe Mason, 1022 17th st. nw. The game was held in an apartment above the Romano Inn, police testified.

Mason, who in May, 1949, was fined $500 and given a suspended six-month sentence on bookmaking and lottery charges, was fined $1000. Fratantuono and Gibson were fined $750 each. All were handed six-month suspended sentences.

In connection with the same dice game, seven of 18 men charged with shooting craps failed to appear in court. Bowie ordered their bonds of $100 apiece forfeited and the charges continued until August 4. Charges against the 11 who appeared were dismissed for lack of evidence.

Girl Snags Body On Fishing Line In C&O Canal

The body of Vito Antonio Procaccino, 19, of 932 4th st. ne., was recovered late yesterday afternoon from the C. & O. Canal.

Police said the body was snagged with a fishing line by 9-year-old Marion Geesling of 4924 Canal rd. nw. The girl reported her line caught on something heavy in the water while she was fishing from the pier at her home about 4:45 p. m.

She called to her mother, Mrs. Louise Geesling, for help and the two tried to drag in the line, which snapped. A few second later the body came to the surface. Mrs. Geesling called harbor police who recovered the body an hour later.

The body was identified by an uncle, Joseph Teurce. Police said Procacino drowned Thursday while swimming with a friend in the canal near Brookmont, Md., about a mile north of the Geesling home.

College Training Puts Owner Of Poolroom Behind Eight Ball

A college graduate has no business running a poolroom on Ninth st., District Court Judge Alexander Holtzoff decided yesterday.

He gave Frederick R. Murdock, jr., a 30-90 days' suspended sentence on lottery charges, and placed him on probation for two years.

But before he would either suspend the sentence or place him on probation, Judge Holtzoff told Murdock to sell his interest in Buddy's Poolroom at 937 9th st. nw., within 30 days, or go to jail.

"You are a college graduate, according to the probation office report," Judge Holtzoff told Murdock. "Yet you have apparently received nothing at all from your college education, nothing at all.

"Instead, you go ahead and buy a poolroom on 9th street, one of the most disreputable sections of the city. I want you to sell this poolroom within 30 days and enter some occupation acceptable to the court, or else you will have to go to jail on these charges."

Murdock and his partner in the poolroom, Jacob S. Farmer, 28, 212 Wayne pl. se., were convicted of operating a numbers lottery in the poolroom in April. Police said that Vice Squad undercover men purchased numbers chances with marked money in the poolroom.

Farmer also was given a suspended 30-90-day sentence and placed on probation for two years. But Judge Holtzoff attached no special strings to Farmer's probation.

Murdock, who is 27 and lives at 1336 Missouri ave. nw., told the judge he had purchased the pool hall to supplement his income as a newspaper circulation employe.

William R. Lichtenberg, Murdock's lawyer, told Judge Holtzoff that arrangements were underway to sell the 9th street establishment.

Lichtenberg said he did not know what college Murdock had attended. The poolroom telephone was disconnected at the time of the Vice Squad raid, and Murdock could not be reached for comment.

Falls Church Man Is Fined $20 for 'Disorder' at Fire

A Falls Church man was fined $20 in Arlington County Court yesterday for refusing a police order to leave the scene of a fire where, officers said, he was telling firemen how to quench the blaze.

The would-be fireman, Wilson O. Myers, 37, of 1012 Fowler st., works at the Arlington Oil Co., 1758 Arlington Ridge rd. where the oil fire blazed harmlessly in an oil tank pit.

Three fire companies extinguished the fire within a few minutes, but not before Arlington police ordered Myers to stop interfering. When Myers argued, he was charged with obstructing justice and disorderly conduct, later fined $10 on each count.

Fear-Struck When He Confessed, Tyler Says

Thoughts of Death In Electric Chair Upset Mind, Asserts Murder Defendant

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

His mind was confused and he was obsessed with dread of the electric chair when he signed his confession, William A. Tyler, jr., told the Good-Friday murder jury yesterday.

The muscular 18-year-old defendant muttered that although death was on his mind when he penned his signature, even then he was hoping that the jury that would try him would "understand my story."

Second Day on Stand

The coolness that had marked Tyler throughout the week-long trial was gone. He appeared bewildered as to dates. He said he couldn't even remember his own signature. As he spoke, his fingers were tightly entwined across his chest.

For the second straight day, Tyler was on the witness stand before Judge Alexander Holtzoff of District Court to deny the crime.

He said that he was home asleep on the early morning of April 7 when Watchman John C. Carpenter, 67, and Oliver R. Hess, 57, were beaten and stabbed to death at the Lansburgh & Bro. department store.

On direct examination, Tyler denied that he reenacted the crime when taken by detectives to the store May 6, and said that the policemen led him through the store. Tyler said he had been beaten.

He said Det. Sergt. Lloyd B. Furr urged him to show how the murder was committed.

"I told him no," Tyler said, "and he said 'you don't want any more of what you got.'

"No, I don't want any more, I told him, and he said 'you are going to get some more,' and I followed," Tyler testified.

As to the confession, Tyler said that it was never read to him and that he merely followed the policemen's orders when he signed it.

Denies Ownership

Then he carefully examined the bloodstained handkerchief and scarf used to bind and gag one of the guards and denied ownership.

On cross-examination, Tyler was asked what was in the confession, and he replied, "I was tired . . . sick . . . druggy. I don't remember."

In answer to questions as to whether the signature is his, Tyler declared jerkily:

"I can't say . . . I don't know whether I signed it or not . . . I write two or three different ways . . . That's my name . . . I tell you I could not say . . . It might be my name . . . Sometimes I write good, sometimes I write bad . . . I don't want to have any reason for denying that I signed a paper."

Pressed further as to the confession, Tyler finally declared, "Like I told you, I was sick, tired. I wasn't caring. I was facing the electric chair. I took my chances on the jury that they might understand my story."

Taking another tack, Heflin then asked the defendant about his boyhood friend, Howard Roy, 20, who had testified Tyler planned just the day before the killings to return to the store. Tyler said that it was actually Roy who had intended a robbery.

"Why didn't you tell police about Roy?" Heflin asked.

"I didn't have anything to do with it or want to have anything to do with it," said Tyler. "It wasn't my place to tell them."

Tyler will be cross-examined further beginning at 10 a. m. Monday.

The case should reach the jury on Tuesday or Wednesday, court officials forecast.

Rise Continues In Store Sales Here and U. S.

by S. Oliver Goodman

Dollar sales of Washington department stores in week ended June 17 showed 4 percent improvement over the same 1949 period, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported yesterday.

For the four weeks ended the same date, sales were 3 percent higher than the year-ago level.

The sales improvement was general throughout the region and the Nation. The Fifth Federal Reserve District displayed a gain of 4 percent for the week and the four-week period. Nationally, the week's sales increased 6 percent. Stores in 11 of the 12 Federal Reserve Districts showed year-to-year increases.

Meanwhile, the Commerce Department reported that retail sales in May ran 7 percent above the same 1949 month. The 1950 total was estimated at $11,555,000,000, compared with $11,064,000,000 in April and $10,763,000,000 a year ago.

Dun & Bradstreet in its weekly survey said there was a further rise in consumer spending in the week ended this Wednesday as favorable weather came to much of the Nation. It added that widespread promotions of summer merchandise were partly responsible for the increase in sales.

Theft Trap Nets New Suspect, 13

Storekeeper Percy Ryland, 37, set a trap for a thief early yesterday and caught a totally different suspect.

About 4:30 a. m., Ryland waited across the street from his store-newsstand at 7832 Eastern ave. nw., hoping to catch the burglar who broke into his store about three weeks ago.

Nearby, a Capital Transit bus drove up to the end of its line and discharged passengers—including a 13-year-old boy.

Bus Driver Howard Reedy of Hyattsville, Md., closed front and back doors, left the driver's window open so he could reach the door lever later, and walked away for coffee in a nearby restaurant. He took his change carrier with him.

Watcher Ryland then saw the 13-year-old boy enter the bus, using the door lever, and close the door behind him. Ryland said he approached to find the boy looting a cash box containing $40.

When the storekeeper tried to enter the front door, the boy ran for the back door. When Ryland reversed his field, so did the boy. The chase ended when Ryland's son, Kenneth, drove up to take his father to their home, 3301 Coqueline ter., Chevy Chase, Md.

Young Ryland covered one door while his father entered the bus and grabbed the boy, who was taken to Sixth Precinct Police Station, charged with petit larceny, and held for juvenile authorities.

Capitol sources predicted yesterday that the Justice Department will not give Senator Matthew M. Neely (D., W. Va.) access to its copy of the wire-tapping report of Police Lieut. Joseph Shimon.

These sources said a decision had already been made by top-level officials not to give clearance for the report to go to the Senate District Committee of which Neely is chairman.

The basis for the decision was said to be the fact that the Federal Bureau of Investigation has been ordered to make its own investigation of information in the report.

The predictions at the Capitol found no confirmation from the Justice Department's information office. Its counter-prediction was that a decision might be made early next week, but that for the present there was "no comment."

Summer Parties Keep Blooming

By Marie McNair

Parties go on apace as spring gives way to summer. There was dancing last night at the French Embassy, and the Sulgrave Club, and for a group of young people at Mr. and Mrs. Marquis Childs' Chevy Chase home.

There were cocktail parties—almost a half dozen of them—with the Philippine Ambassador, Joaquin Elizalde, host at perhaps the largest of these fetes for his distinguished compatriot, Gen. Carlos Romulo.

The French Ambassador and Mme. Bonnet had asked only a few of their friends in for dancing, but it was a much larger group who attended the Junior Assembly's summer ball at the Sulgrave Club.

Dance Celebrates College Graduation

MALISSA CHILDS, the Marquis Childs' daughter, was celebrating her graduation from Stanford University where she was elected Phi Beta Kappa, and before her dance gave a small dinner at the Sulgrave Club. Mr. and Mrs. Childs had asked some of their friends to dine with them, too, at the club, the group returning with them to dance.

At Miss Childs' table were Miss Frances Haynes, Eberhardt Haynes, Miss Ruth Saul, Miss Marianna Amram, Miss Constance Logan, Miss Joan Burke, Timothy Atkeson, Laughlin Phillips, Norman James, Roy Morgan, and Edward Brylawski.

Maliss, who made her debut New Year's Day a year ago, wore a white ankle-length organdy frock, embroidered in a green leaf design. Mrs. Childs was in white organza patterned in navy blue. Both mother and daughter wore white orchids.

Having mastered the difficult Russian language—it was her college major—Miss Childs is hoping for a job to put it in practice. So—she'll be around most of the summer with occasional weekends out of town.

Romulos Are Feted At Embassy Party

AT THE Philippine Embassy, Gen. Carlos Romulo, president of U. N. General Assembly and newly named Secretary of Foreign Affairs of the Philippines, shared honors with Mrs. Romulo at Ambassador Elizalde's party.

The general will leave here on Sunday with Mrs. Romulo for Manila and will give up his duties as head of the Assembly when the group ends its session in September or October.

Mrs. Romulo wore her native "terno" of beautiful handwoven "Juse" which differs from the more familiar pina cloth. Apple green in color, the gown was woven in gold thread in a leaf and flower design. With it she wore antique coral and gold ornaments—necklace, comb, earrings and pin—which had been left her by her great grandmother.

Capitol Hill had wide representation at the party. So did the diplomatic corps and there was a sprinkling from the State Department in addition to personal friends of host and honor guests. Among the guests were the French Ambassador and Mme. Bonnet, the Italian Ambassador and Signora Tarchiani, the Colombian Ambassador and Senora de Zuleta-Angel, the Ambassador of Thailand and Princess Wan Waithayakon, the New Zealand Ambassador and Lady Berendsen, the Iceland Minister and Mme. Thors, the Pakistan Ambassador and Mme. Ispahani and the Dominican Ambassador and Mme. Thomen.

Cabinet Members Among Guests

SECRETARY of the Interior and Mrs. Oscar Chapman, Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Charles Brannan and Speaker Sam Rayburn were in the gathering. Then there were Senator Hugh Butler, Senator and Mrs. Hubert Humphrey, Senator Margaret Chase Smith, Senator Burnet Maybank, Representative Katherine St. George, Representative Joe Martin, Representative and Mrs. Lowell Stockman and Representative and Mrs. Karl Stefan.

Former United States Ambassador to the Philippines, Emmet O'Neal and Mrs. O'Neal were among those asked to greet General and Mrs. Romulo.

Farewells were said at the party yesterday given by G. J. Jobsis, Netherlands Alternate Delegate to the Far Eastern Commission, and Mrs. Jobsis, who will return soon to the Netherlands. They will give another fete on Monday.

Among those invited yesterday were the Charge d' Affaires of the Netherlands and Mme. Reuchlin; and Alternate Delegates to the Far Eastern Commission, and their wives, from Canada, China, Great Britain, Soviet Union, Pakistan, Australia and the Philippines. Also the Deputy Secretary to the Far Eastern Commission, David K. Eichler, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Chapman, and Major Gen. and Mrs. Rush Lincoln, and members of the International Bank.

Luncheon Held For Spring Debutante

Razas Entertain At Cocktails

GUESTS asked to the home of Brigadier N. A. K. Raza, Military Attache of the Pakistan Embassy and Mme. Raza, for cocktails, were also expected to stay for a buffet supper.

Among those who did were Naval Attache of the Australian Embassy, Rear Admiral H. B. Farncomb, and Mrs. Farncomb; the Air Attache of the Australian Embassy and Mrs. C. W. Pearce; the Assistant Naval Attache of the Australian Embassy and Mrs. J. C. Morrow.

Canada's Naval Attache, Commodore H. N. Lay and Mrs. Lay were there and also from Canada, Air Commodore and Mrs. M. M. Hendrick.

Dr. T. R. Cajigas Weds in Detroit

Dr. Wells' Family Takes R. I. Home

Dr. and Mrs. Walter Wells and their family, which includes two daughters and about 10 French poodles, have found a house at Narragansett, R. I., which will accommodate all of them with comfort for the summer.

"Druid's Dream" an English-type stone house, has 13 acres for the poodles, and 20 rooms for the family of four—Dr. and Mrs. Wells, Mrs. Marion Gibson Wells and Miss Eleanor Wells.

There's a legend woven around the house which was built about 1846 by Joseph Pearce Hazard. According to a Hazard kinsman, Leonard Bacon, author of the book, "Semi-Centennial," Mr. Hazard was asleep one night when he dreamed an ancient Celtic Druid visited him saying, "Arise, and leave this house and walk to the west."

Mr. Hazard, whom Mr. Bacon described as an "infatuated spiritualist," followed directions and when he had gone so many paces was commanded by the Druid to stop. At that spot, he was told to build a stone house. Thus, he built the house that was to be called Druid's Dream.

Dr. Wells, for many years a practicing surgeon and physician in Washington, has retired now and will spend his summers at Narragansett. But there's a possibility he will make the beach resort a year-round home.

Pan-American Group Protests

UN Intervention in Sentencing Of 3 Czech Women Requested

THE Pan American Liaison Committee of Women's Organizations, representing 20 million women in the Western Hemisphere, is seeking United Nations intervention in the sentencing in Czechoslovakia of three Czech women convicted of treason.

The women, who were convicted and sentenced on June 8 along with 10 of their fellow countrymen, are:

Dr. Milada Horakova, former member of the Czech Parliament and former chairman of the National Council of Women in Czechoslovakia, who is sentenced to die.

Antonie Kleinerova, a leader of the Czech resistance movement during the Nazi occupation, who is sentenced to life imprisonment, and Frantiska Zemoinova, Czech feminist and former vice president of the political party of former President Benes, who is sentenced to 20 years' imprisonment.

The clubwomen's protest to this action, which has been sent to UN Secretary General Trygve Lie, entreats him to "work for the commutation of their sentences."

Also the women have sent a telegram to Klement Gottwald, Communist president of Czechoslovakia, stating:

"The Pan American Liaison Committee of 94 Women's Organizations in the Americas, representing 20 million women, knowing well the humanitarian work of Dr. Milada Horakova, Frantiska Zeminova and Antonie Kleinerova, are shocked at the sentences of these outstanding workers for international understanding. We implore you to commute their sentences."

A copy of this note was enclosed in the appeal to Trygve Lie. Similar pleas for assistance in commuting the sentences went to Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, UN delegate; Mrs. Anezka Hodinova, member of the Czech Parliament; Mrs. Gertrude Sckaninova-Cakrtova, deputy foreign minister of Czechoslovakia; the International Red Cross Committee at Geneva, and Mme. Marie Helen LeFaucheux, chairman of the UN Commission on the Status of Women and a member of the French Office of Foreign Affairs.

The clubwomen voted to send the several notes of protest Thursday at their final meeting of the season at the Pan American Union.

U. of M. Honors Two Groups At Short Course

School is out at the University of Maryland's week-long course for rural homemakers and the 1100 students will start back to their farm communities this morning.

Yesterday 138 of the short course students received certificates for attending the sessions for four consecutive years. Twenty-five of the women were awarded pins for sticking with the course for eight years. Students spent the rest of the day sightseeing in Washington.

This is the twenty-fourth year the University's agriculture extension branch has offered the week program on homemaking, nutrition, gardening, public speaking and current events for Maryland's rural women.

Special Method Removes Hair

With the advent of the sunbathing season, one phase of good grooming—the removal of superfluous hair—takes on added importance.

When such temporary methods as depilatories and abrasives fail to do an adequate job, permanent removal of hair is sometimes required. Expert help in the latter is offered at one of Washington's newest shops, located at 812 19th st. nw. Here a staff of trained operators provides a treatment known as the Thermiquetron System of Epilation. The system, resulting from 16 years of research and development, was perfected by Harry A. Cowan of Boston, and is used in other Cowan shops in that city, Providence, R. I., and New York City.

If You Are Lonely

If you are lonely in the night . . . Or if the day is long . . . I hope you will remember me . . . And listen to my song . . . I hope you will remember, dear . . . The words I sang to you . . . When we adored each other and . . . I promised to be true . . . For I have never left you, love . . . Since we have been apart . . . But I have always cherished you . . . And held you in my heart . . . And when the rain has fallen and . . . The wind has walked the sea . . . My thoughts have whispered and my soul . . . Has prayed unceasingly . . . That I might keep and comfort you . . . As long as day and night . . . And after every silver star . . . Has disappeared from sight.

Prof. Max Radin Dies; Legal Authority

Oakland, Calif., June 23 (U.P.).—Prof. Max Radin, 70, widely-known authority on law whose liberal views cost him a State Supreme Court appointment in 1940, died at Peralta Hospital yesterday of a heart ailment.

Professor Radin, a teacher of law at the University of California for nearly 30 years, was appointed to the State Supreme Court by Gov. Culbert L. Olson. The Judicial Qualifications Commission turned down his appointment, presumably because Radin had been accused of left-wing sympathies.

Subsequently, President Robert Gordon Sproul of the university formally denied Professor was a Communist and Radin himself went on record against all political philosphies alien to democracy.

He is survived by a daughter, Rhea of 734 15th st. nw., Washington.

Six B-36 Bombers Reach Hawaii

Honolulu, June 23 (AP).—Six B-36 bombers landed today after flying for nearly two days on a nonstop training mission of unprecedented scope far out over the Pacific.

The first plane set down at 3:48 p. m. (8:48 p. m., Eastern Standard Time.) The sixth landed only 11 minutes later.

Two of the planes were reported flying on only five of their six engines.

Samuel S. Fels, Soap Magnate, Dies at 90

Philadelphia, June 23 (U.P.).—Samuel S. Fels, 90, pioneer soap manufacturer who made Fels Naphtha a household word in the days before automatic washing machines, died today in Temple University Hospital after a short illness.

The shy, little widower who donated an estimated 30 million dollars to charities and the arts and sciences, was stricken June 6 with a liver ailment. He entered the hospital June 8 in serious condition, but doctors refrained from operating because of his advanced age.

He is survived only by a brother, Maurice, who is 93.

Plumbers Try To Invalidate Md. Pipe Law

Five master plumbers yesterday challenged the constitutionality of a Maryland law that returned to the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission the job of installing water and sewer connections to houses.

They filed a suit in Prince Georges County Circuit Court. In it, they asked that the law be stricken and that the sanitary commission be kept from functioning under the act until the case be decided.

The five plumbers contend the act is unconstitutional because no emergency existed at the time it was passed. The law went through in a special Legislature limited to consideration of bills affecting financial matters, dealing with acute emergencies or deemed in the general public welfare.

Judge Charles C. Marbury issued an order for the commission to show cause by July 19 why the restraining injunction should not be issued.

The complaining are Daniel F. Buckley of 3731 Rhode Island ave., Brentwood; G. Leonard Daymude of 46 Detrick ave., Kensington; John C. Dorsey of 4902 Sheridan st., Hyattsville; Raymond C. Freas of 7906 Woodberry dr., Silver Spring, and Edward C. Musgrove of 759 Silver Spring ave., Silver Spring.

Dr. Pruden to Work For Baptist Unity

By Martha J. Hall
Post Reporter

The Rev. Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden, born and reared in the South, last month was elected head of the American Baptist Convention, which has some two million members in 36 Northern States.

Dr. Pruden, pastor of First Baptist Church, 16th and O sts. nw., last night was congratulated on his election at a reception given by his congregation.

During his year as president of the convention, Virginia-born Dr. Pruden hopes to be able to help to bring together the American convention (formerly the Northern) and the Southern Baptist Convention.

The Washington Post
REV. DR. EDWARD HUGHES PRUDEN,

"I think there is a real desire among a large number in both the Northern and Southern Conventions to get together," Dr. Pruden said yesterday. "I certainly hope to do something to further that objective."

"A number of things will have to take place before that can be done. It will probably take years," he said.

Major difference between the two conventions, Dr. Pruden explained, is over the matter of cooperation with interdenominational Protestant agencies—the local Federal, and World Councils of Churches.

A few Southern churches belong to local agencies, but the Southern Convention has no official connection with either the Federal or World Council, he said.

"This is partly due to the feeling that any large Protestant organization might become a super-church and dictate to the local congregation. The Southern Baptists are traditionally conservative in theology and assume many in the Protestant agencies are liberal," Dr. Pruden said.

Affiliated With Both

The District of Columbia Baptist Convention, organized along the lines of a State convention, is the only convention which is affiliated with both the Northern and Southern churches.

At the convention at which Dr. Pruden was elected, the name of the Northern Baptist Convention was changed to the American Baptist Convention.

Among the reasons for this was the fact that many members of the Northern church disliked the geographical label and felt the church should include all areas of the country. In addition, the Southern Convention has accepted many churches in the North into its membership.

"There's no plan on foot to influence the Southern churches to come into the American Convention," Dr. Pruden said. "But they would be welcome to come if they chose to come," he added.

At the present time there are no Northern churches in the South. The two conventions split in 1845 over the issue of slavery.

Pilgrims Cap Grand Tour With Visit to the Auld Sod

Miss Kathryn E. Bowers, public relations assistant at the Hamilton National Bank, was hostess for more than 200 Washingtonians who toured Europe following their Holy Year pilgrimage to Rome. Her reports of their travels have appeared in The Washington Post. In the following concluding letter she writes of visiting Ireland.

En Route to Dublin.
Saturday, June 10.

Dear Reader:

Early Saturday afternoon we left the beautiful Lake District by train from Windermere, and arrived at Liverpool at 6 p. m. We embarked on the SS Munster and sailed out on the Irish Sea at 10 p. m.

We arrived in Dublin at 7 a. m. and Monsignor (the Very Rev. John S.) Spence was met by two representatives of the Irish Department of External Affairs, Messrs. Tadhg O'Sullivan and Dermot Waldron. They escorted us to the Church of St. Francis where Monsignor Spence said mass in the chapel of St. Anthony.

We went along there, by bus, to the Royal Marine Hotel at Dun Laoghaire (pronuonced Dun Lerry), about 6 miles south of Dublin.

Enjoy Concert on Pier

After dinner, many of us strolled out to the band concert on the East Pier. For tuppence (about 1 cent) some of our folks were lucky enough to get seats. Among them were Margaret Doran, Mrs. A. J. Pieters, Gertrude Crilly, Velma Ryan, Eva Kuchesky, Helen Mulholland and Elizabeth Sudmeier.

On Monday morning's tour, our first stop was the library of Trinity College in Dublin where we saw the ancient world famous "Book of Kells".

Shop for China, Linen

Coming back into the center of Dublin, some of us stayed in town to shop. This time for china and Irish linen.

In the evening we had much merriment and singing at an Irish holly, which we are told is the name for an impromptu gathering. Those lending their voices to many Irish songs were Mary Louise Brown, Erna Disselkamp, Dan and Marguerite Earner, Genevieve Eberle, Margaret Hubbard, Aileen Mahoney, Marvel McPhee, Ruth Poirier and Agnes Stasek. It was great fun, and we were reluctant to break up at midnight —we even had an audience of other guests of our hotel.

On Tuesday some of us took a 50-mile trip by private car, to Glendalough to visit Bullock Castle and the cemetery there.

Pass McCormack Home

On Thursday we rode around the "Ring of Kerry," which is beautiful country, dotted with many lakes.

After dinner some of us rode over to Parknasilla and joined the crowd there for dancing.

On Friday morning, after mass for the feast of the Sacred Heart, we were scheduled to start for Cork, but were held up because of the cows! Let me explain. It was market day and the main street was filled with about 500 mooing and snifting cows—all over the street and on the sidewalks. And we had to walk among them going to mass!

Down to Window Shopping

After lunch in Cork, the Ryan sisters, Eva Kuchesky, Aileen Mahoney and your correspondent found their way to the shopping district. It was amusing and indicative of the state of our pocketbooks to have Eva gaze longing in a china shop window and say "Isn't that beautiful, but I've only got enough money left to buy some shoe polish!"

We embarked at 6 p. m. on the SS. Innisfallen for Fishguard, England, but didn't feel so peppy the next morning at 3 a. m., when we were called to disembark! We arrived at the Royal Court Hotel, London, at noon, after some record traveling since Friday morning. Imagine—breakfast at Kenmare, lunch at Cork, dinner at sea, breakfast at Fishguard and lunch at London!

Two more days of sightseeing on our return visit to the great metropolis and it became our task, Monday evening, to pack for the journey home. We have come to the end of this glorious experience and some are reluctant to stop.

Now we must thank God for His blessings and protection during the trip, as well as for the wonderful weather we have had—only one rainy day. Also we must express appreciation to our tour conductor, Mr. Vicchi, and his assistants, Mrs. McCauley, Mr. Bovill, Mr. Toniatti, Mr. Stromquist, Mr. Dale and Mr. Bailey for the many ways in which they worked for our comfort; to the director of the entire tour, Monsignor Spence; and lastly to The Washington Post for the splendid opportunity of sharing with our many relatives and friends the various incidents of the trip. We have heard from many sources how interested our people were to read about us as we traveled along.

We board the Ile de France this afternoon to spend six days getting our minds attuned for the effort of becoming acclimated to going back to work. It's going to be a terrific adjustment!

Until the next trip!

Two Churches To Start Work On Schools

Ground for Presbyterian educational buildings will be broken at churches in Rockville, Md., and Fairlington, Va., on Sunday afternoon.

Fairlington Presbyterian Church will break ground for its $85,000 unit at 3 p. m. ceremonies at Leesburg pike and Shirley hwy.

The unit will be the first in the church's proposed plant and will contain classrooms, church offices, a kitchen and large auditorium. Services will be held in the auditorium after it is completed early in 1951. Since it was organized, the Fairlington church has been meeting in the Centre Theater at 1511 Seminary rd.

Participants in the service will include the Rev. Dr. Andrew R. Bird, pastor of the Church of the Pilgrims in Washington; the Rev. E. Kirk Hammond, superintendent of Home Missions of the Potomac Presbytery, and the Rev. Charles E. Cowsert, pastor of the church.

The Rockville ground-breaking will be at 5 p. m. Dr. Bird will be the main speaker, and Mrs. Henry K. Pasma, widow of the former pastor of the church, will turn the first spadeful of earth.

The Rev. Howard C. Cobbs, present pastor, will preside and the Rev. James S. Albertson, pastor of Bethesda Presbyterian Church, will bring greetings from the Potomac Presbytery.

Collegeville, Pa., June 23 (AP).—The General Synod of the Evangelical and Reformed Church went on record today against a personal representative of the President or an American Ambassador at the Vatican.

The synod is meeting here for its eighth triennial session.

The Vatican resolution said the synod speaks for 728,000 persons. The executive officers of the church were instructed to bring the resolution to the notice of President Truman, the State Department and the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations.

The synod elected the Rev. W. Sherman Kerschner of Philadelphia as the new secretary general of the denomination. He succeeds Dr. William E. Lampe of Philadelphia, who resigned yesterday.

Missouri Synod Restates Boy Scout Stand

Milwaukee, June 23 (U.P.).—The Missouri Synod of the Lutheran Church reaffirmed today a policy of letting individual congregations decide whether members should join the Boy Scouts.

Delegates to the Synod's forty-first triennial convention also voted to streamline the church's administration and to establish a four-year Senior College at a place yet to be decided.

Evangelical Lutherans Vote $4,200,000 Budget

Minneapolis, June 23 (AP).—The Evangelical Lutheran Church, in Biennial convention here, will operate on an all-time record budget of $4,200,000 for the next two years.

The amount, $600,000 greater than the 1949-50 allotment, was approved by the delegates last night. Funds were voted into the stewardship of the Board of Trustees for distribution.

Congregationalists Name Dr. Horton

Cleveland, June 23 (AP).—Dr. Douglas Horton of New York City was reelected minister and secretary today of the General Council of Congregational Christian Churches.

Dr. Horton was unopposed, but the vote still was 697 to 99, indicating opposition from delegates opposing merger of their church with the Evangelical and Reformed Church. Dr. Horton Long has supported the promerger forces.

Episcopal Church Plans $40,000 Building Drive

All Souls' Memorial Episcopal Church, Cathedral ave. and Woodley pl. nw., has announced plans for a $40,000 campaign for funds for an addition to the church.

Work on the addition, which will contain classrooms and church offices, will begin within 60 days. It will be erected south of Cathedral ave. on Woodley pl.

Increased church activities and appointment of an assistant to the rector to work with the growing Sunday school have made the additional church facilities necessary, William P. McCracken, church school superintendent said.

At 11 a. m. Sunday the Rev. Frank Blackwelder, rector of the church, will preach on "Fifteen Years in the Christian Ministry." He was ordained on June 30, 1935, and has been rector of All Souls since 1948.

Princess Reported in New Romance . . .

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

NEWEST CONTENDER—Last June Princess Margaret (left, nearest camera) was pictured sitting opposite the Earl of Dalkeith in an open carriage on the Ascot, England, race course. London gossips are now saying that the couple are much closer. Rumors are that the Princess wants to marry the 26-year-old red-haired Scotsman

Princess' Troth Hinted To Rich Earl

London, June 23 (U.P.).—Princess Margaret, Europe's royal heartbreaker, was reported today to have chosen the rich and eligible Earl of Dalkeith as the man she would like to marry.

If this is so—and court circles think it is as definite as anything can be when one is pretty, popular and only 19—the King and Queen will be most gratified.

For Dalkeith, 26-year-old heir of the Duke of Buccleuch, is immensely rich, has the correct blood lines and by every standard of comparison is the type man the daughter of a king should marry.

When asked about the reports today the tall, red-haired earl said: "We are just good friends."

Nevertheless, it is believed that unless the princess changes her mind, the engagement probably will be announced on or after her twentieth birthday August 21.

Catholic Preacher Institute to Open

Training in sermon-writing and preaching will be offered at the eighteenth annual Preachers Institute at Catholic University which opens Monday and continues through August 5.

The school was opened in 1932 in answer to demands from priests for training beyond that obtained in the seminary. The Very Rev. Ignatius Smith, dean of the school of philosophy at C. U., will head the faculty.

During the six-week institute, priests will receive intensive training in writing and delivering sermons. In addition, there will be special work in radio broadcasting techniques.

Catholic Groups to Meet

The thirty-sixth National Conference of Catholic Charities and the annual meeting of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul will be held in Washington November 2 through 6, the Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington, announced yesterday.

In Anacostia

Group Assails Junior High Segregation

An end to segregation in Anacostia's junior high schools was demanded yesterday by the Consolidated Parent Group.

The organization of Negro parents, in a letter to the Board of Education, charged board members with failure to provide educational facilities for Negroes equal to those for whites.

The letter was referred by the board to school officials for study.

Six inequalities were cited in the letter signed by Gardner L. Bishop, president of the group.

Negro junior high students must attend classes in elementary school buildings while white children go to buildings of junior-high design. Principals of Negro schools are classified as elementary school principals and receive less salary than the two white junior-high principals.

Students at the Negro schools range in age from 6 to 13—a "heterogeneous" grouping—while at the white schools the ages range from 12 to 14.

Counseling service in the Negro schools is available only two days a week and the counselor at one of the schools, the Turner, must share an office with a nurse. The counselor at the white Sousa serves full-time and has a private office.

The Negro schools are on sites of one to three acres while the white Sousa is built on a 10-acre plot.

Plucking Boards' End Approved by Truman

The bill provides instead a system for retaining officers on the active list.

A committee report said the new system would accomplish the same results, "but would in a sense not point the finger at the officer not retained."

Girl Recovers From Polio; 5th Case Here

The District's fifth poliomyelitis case this year, an 18-year-old girl of lower 13th st., nw., whose mild case was not diagnosed until the day she left the hospital, was reported yesterday to the District Health Department.

The department's Bureau of Public Health Education said she entered Gallinger Hospital June 1, but that the true nature of her illness was not found out until June 19, when she was ready to go home. Health officials said she has completely recovered.

This time last year three cases had been reported in the District.

Adoration Society To Be Established In Archdiocese

The Shrine of the Sacred Heart, 16th st. and Park rd. nw., will become the center of special Catholic devotions in the fall.

The Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, archbishop of Washington, announced that the Nocturnal Adoration Society will be established in the archdiocese in the fall with its center at the Shrine.

Members of the society are pledged to spend at least one hour each month between 10 p. m. and 5 a. m. in prayer before the Blessed Sacrament. The vigils will begin on October 5 at 10 p. m., the archbishop said.

The archbishop has granted permission for all-day exposition of the Blessed Sacrament at the Shrine every Friday, also beginning in October. Prayers for world peace, for the welfare of the United States and the American people will be offered at the devotions each week.

Camp Project Still Open For Children

Children may still enroll for the D. C. Recreation Department day camp program starting Monday, it was announced yesterday.

The program is free to District children between the ages of 7 and 14. Parents may enroll their children by picking up registration blanks at the department, 3149 16th st. nw, or by taking their children directly to one of the nine camps Monday.

The program runs from 9 a. m. to 3 p. m. Monday through Friday and offers nature study, camp cooking, handicraft, folk dancing and singing under trained counselors in wooded park areas.

At the beginning, the children will choose a theme, such as Indians or Gypsies, and carry it through their two weeks in various activities. At the end of each two-week period, a "Parents' Night" is scheduled, with a campfire and supper.

The periods run from June 26 to July 7, July 10 to July 21, July 24 to August 4 and August 7 to August 18.

Encampments will be held at these places:

Klan Invasion Of D. C. Seen

Atlanta, June 23 (AP).—The Atlanta Journal said today that at least one organizer for the Ku Klux Klan has been dispatched to work in the District of Columbia.

"Sam Roper, Imperial Wizard of the Association of Georgia Klans, has just spent three days in Washington and was told that 3500 recruits for the Klan could be enlisted there in 60 days," the newspaper reported.

Roper "is said to have learned that there is objection by many residents of Washington to non-segregation at public parks and in swimming pools," the Journal continued.

Declining comment on the District of Columbia organizational report, Roper said Klan recruiting is "picking up" in some northern States, particularly Indiana and Pennsylvania.

Mr. Chandler to Mark 10th Year With Church

Dr. Forster

Announcement of his appointment as both professor of neurology and director of the department was made yesterday by the Rev. Paul A. McNally, S. J., dean of the school.

Reunion Set At Providence Hospital

Those who have served and those who now serve Providence Hospital here will meet Monday in all-day reunion.

The reunion, at the city's oldest hospital and the Kenwood Country Club, is expected to attract nearly 200 local doctors.

Climax of the day's events will be a reunion dinner, at 7:30 p. m., in the country club, at which special tribute will be paid to former Providence interns. These include Dr. Joseph S. Wall, pediatrician; Dr. Joseph J. Mandell, obstetrician; Dr. John Allan Talbot, obstetrician, and Dr. Claude C. Gaylor, roentgenologist.

Dr. Wall, 73, chairman of the medical staff at Children's Hospital, is believed to be the oldest living former Providence intern. He served in training there from 1897 to 1899. Dr. Gaylor, who interned there in 1910, is the oldest staff member there, having served the hospital continuously since that training period.

Monday's reunion will open with a mass at 8 a. m. in Providence Hospital Chapel. The Rev. Hugh Foley, hospital chaplain, will be the celebrant. A scientific session will follow.

B-29 Lost in Pacific; 8 Saved, One Sought

Tokyo (Saturday), June 24 (AP). The Air Force today said eight men from a B-29 down at sea had been rescued, one other is known to have survived and is being sought, and two are missing.

Yesterday the Air Force said a crashboat radioed it had reached eight men aboard a lifeboat. There was no explanation of the discrepancy.

The bomber was forced down about 140 miles southeast of Guam as it headed home from a training mission over Okinawa.

The Air Force said the six rescued survivors suffered bruises and from exposure. It added that the rescuers were seeking three known survivors who had been seen last night. The other two remained unaccounted for.

Air Force officials said two of the three men known to have survived were seen on a life raft. Surface craft were trying to reach them. The third was sighted in a life jacket yesterday. A raft was dropped to him, but planes could not find him this morning.

Postlude

'Barber' Sharp But Not Polished

By Paul Hume

The Barber of Seville had last night's Watergate audience in a lather.

Between the razor-like comedy of Mario Valle's staging, and the cutting humor of Rossini's score, it was a sharp evening. Honors in singing went to Grave Panvini, whose coloratura soprano was free of the edge that often afflicts these high-flying singers.

Her style, acting and clean, brilliant tones echoed to the Lincoln Memorial and back, as she brightened up one of opera's best slapstick offerings. Mario Valle, as her doting old guardian, won frequent rounds of approval both for his acting, so skilled, and his management of the often hectic stage affairs.

William Wilderman added another excellent portrait to his list of local triumphs as Don Basilio; Laurene Buttlar did her best singing of the week as Berta.

Marios, two of them, sang the higher men's parts. Palermo was the Almaviva, while Fiorella sang Figaro, the Barber. Palermo sounded well in ensembles and in the second act. He is not up to the coloratura demands of the opening scene. Nor is Fiorella.

But once Figaro had passed his opening aria, he was more at ease, and stayed with the conductor more often. Rescigno not only led the orchestra but played the recitative accompaniments on the piano. He paced the entire work with proper motion, though he could not always get his singers to agree with him on tempos; important climaxes suffered thereby, through no fault of his.

It was a bright, adequate Barber in many ways, though lacking the essential polish for real quality.

NW Tract Rezoned for Apartments

The original application to the District Zoning Commission, from builder Jack Pollin, asked for rezoning of only one acre. Pollin plans to build a one-million-dollar, 130-unit apartment project facing 14th st.

The commission added the rest, including the long-time Negro community of Vinegar Hill, on its own motion. Robert O. Clouser, District director of planning, said this neighborhood of a dozen homes has neither water nor sewer facilities. Apartment zoning might induce private investors to buy up and develop it, he said.

Boundaries of the rezoned area are Sheridan st., 14th st., Missouri ave., Military rd., and a line 100 feet east of 16th st.

In other actions the Commission:

(1) Rezoned from residential to commercial use land on the east side of S. Capitol st. between Xenia and Atlantic sts. se., where Anacostia National Bank, President W. L. Koontz said a $200,000 branch bank with drive-in banking facilities is planned.

(2) Rezoned from residential to commercial use the Army and Navy Club property at 17th and I sts. nw., so it could erect an awning on its roof garden. With the awning, the building would be 7 feet higher than is permitted to residential zones, a club spokesman told the commission at a hearing June 7.

Fairfax Held In Good Shape By Economist

A healthy picture of Fairfax County tax resources was painted yesterday by a Richmond economist, testifying in the Falls Church annexation suit against the county.

William H. Stauffer, employed by Falls Church to compile tax data for the suit, said the county could lose one fifth of its territory and one seventh of its population without losing its status as Virginia's second county in aggregate wealth.

The 1.75 square miles of Fairfax County sought by the city through annexation comprises about one sixth of the county's assessed property valuation, according to attorneys in the case.

Stauffer said his figures were based on a study of Fairfax County wealth in comparison with the "average figure" for Virginia's 100 counties. He said taxable wealth of $182,861,475 in Fairfax represented about 5 percent of the combined wealth of the 100 counties in the State.

Asked by Judge Paul E. Brown to explain the purpose of Stauffer's testimony, Attorney Horace H. Edwards said annexation laws require the plaintiff to show what financial condition the county would be in after annexation, and whether it would be able to carry on its governmental functions. Edwards, a Richmond attorney, has been employed by Falls Church to assist in prosecution of the suit.

Earlier, Stauffer testified that a "cross-section" study of real estate sales in the county and the assessed valuation of the land involved convinced him that Fairfax properties are assessed "on the under side" of 20 percent of their actual value.

George H. Walter, a member of the Falls Church Board of Assessors, testified that a recommendation of the board that city property be assessed at 45 percent of its actual value was approved by the city council June 21.

Truman Heads List of News Guild Speakers

For the first time since taking office, President Truman will address a labor union in convention session when he delivers a speech Wednesday before the seventeenth annual session of the American Newspaper Guild.

The President, who speaks at 4:30 p. m. Wednesday in the Statler's Presidential Room and over a CBS radio hookup, heads a convention speakers' list that includes Secretary of State Acheson and ECA Administrator Paul G. Hoffman.

Jack Kroll, head of the CIO Political Action Committee, has been added to the speakers' roster. Philip Murary, CIO president, has had to cancel his scheduled address because of illness.

Some 500 delegates and guests representing 100 locals are due to attend the convention, with registration opening at 5 p. m. Sunday at the Statler.

A preconvention program will get under way at 10 a. m. today when the Hearst Chain Council, Scripps-Howard Chain Council and the Wire Service Council hold meetings. They meet again Sunday.

Blind Girl, Dancing Career Over, Revisits to 'Sightsee'

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

The blond girl who left this town where she was born and went to school to become a ballet dancer, and was one until blindness came, said yesterday:

"I want to go to the Capitol and down to the reflecting pool. I want to be around what I used to remember. I want to take someone by the hand and stand there . . ."

Kathleen May came back to Washington for the first time since losing her sight four years ago from diabetic glaucoma.

She came to see her sick father, Joseph Piazza, 1731 Twenty-eighth st. se., who has not seen his daughter since she became blind. And while here she'll "see" some of the sights that are in her blood.

Lisa Gardiner, who taught her ballet from age 5 to 14, and some old classmates were on hand to greet her yesterday at the airport. From Washington, Kathleen went into a professional career, even continued her ballet after she became blind until persuaded it was too dangerous.

While here she'll visit the school where she learned to dance, and the students there now will dance for her, so that she will hear and feel again the art she can no longer perform—or see.

Twenty-five-year-old Kathleen, who once appeared in a "Going Native" revue here, was the spirit of gaiety as she talked to reporters at the Hamilton Hotel, her Master-Eye dog, "Bronze" lying at her feet.

She talked excitedly about how she's marrying soon in Chicago, her home—"a sighted guy, a very sweet-looking guy" and rollicked in laughter when a man asked her on the last point: "How do you know?"

"We women," said Kathleen, "we women have a way of telling."

She does her own sewing—"after all I can't call in the Cossacks when I need something sewn"—and, getting ready to become a wife, is learning to cook.

And it was good, better than she could tell but you know how good it was, to be back in the place where she grew up. She's planning to visit her old Central High School algebra teacher, and to go down to the Sylvan Theater, where she used to perform.

"I want to be around what I once saw . . ."

DEVELOPED FOR WATER SPORTS!

The developers of Drum Point Beach must have had all lovers of water sports in mind when they planned this lovely year-round beach retreat. The specially developed harbor area, protected and secluded has special appeal to the numerous owners and operators of boats and pleasure craft. The Patuxent River is overabundant with the best fisheries in the Bay area; 4 perfectly lovely fresh-water lakes offer leisurely small boating and canoeing, and the wide, beautiful white sand beaches along the Chesapeake Bay leave nothing to be desired in luxurious bathing, surf swimming and sunning. It is unbelievable that so much is packed into one beach development; yet today this is only half the story. For you water lovers, the new Drum Point Beach Section Seven has just opened—offering, for the first time to the public, waterfront sites, where you can tie your boat at your front door, amazingly low priced from $450. (Other choice lots from $350.) Add to this the latest improvements of Drum Point Beach—community of fine homes, electricity, telephone lines, piers, streets to name a few—and you realize that you need wait no longer; the waterfront you've always dreamed of is a reality today. See it this very weekend. Follow these directions to Drum Point Beach: Out Bladensburg Road to Peace Cross, on out to Landover Road, right on route 202 thru Upper Marlboro on route 4 to Wells Corner, right on route 416 thru Prince Frederick, route 2 for 15 miles, left at the sign Drum Point Beach.

Funkhouser Freed in Death Of Soldier

A manslaughter charge against a 23-year-old Accokeek, Md., man who was in a fist fight with a Bolling Air Force Base airman shortly before the soldier's death was dismissed yesterday for insufficient evidence.

The man, Galen Funkhouser, was charged as a result of the death of T/Sergt. Vernon Staley, 32, of a cerebral hemorrhage, May 28.

Witnesses testified in Marlboro Police Court that Funkhouser and Staley fought in an Accokeek garage after an argument over Funkhouser's alleged refusal to push Staley's stalled auto.

Judge Alan Bowie, in freeing Funkhouser, declared there was insufficient evidence of manslaughter to warrant holding the defendant for the grand jury.

Brothers Forfeit $200 for Failure To Pay Sales Tax

Two brothers forfeited $100 collateral each in Municipal Court yesterday for failing to pay the District sales tax on two new automobiles.

Robert Solow, 28, 5300 4th st. nw., and Elliott Solow, 30, 5116 2d st., nw., each must pay the $32 tax, as well as the fines.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark King said that the Solows told officials they were Virginia residents when they applied for District tags.

The Solows operate a gas station in Arlington, Va.

Scaffold Collapse

Worker Dies After Falling Inside Stack

John W. Hill, 30-year-old District boilermaker, died early yesterday at Alexandria Hospital. He was badly hurt Thursday when he plummeted 50 feet down a chimney on which he was working at the Virginia Electric Power Co. in Alexandria.

Mr. Hill

Three other workers were on a scaffold inside the smokestack when the platform tipped over, but they scrambled to safety.

Mr. Hill died of shock, internal injuries and multiple fractures of both arms, attending physicians said.

The accident brought the promise of a "full investigation" from Emery Garner of Baltimore, business agent for Local 193 of the Boilermakers' Union, of which Mr. Hill was a member. Firemen on the scene of the accident said a steel support for the scaffold broke. The smokestack was being dismantled.

Mr. Hill was a native of Bluefield, W. Va. He lived at 2032 37th st. nw., and had worked in the Washington area for about six years.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Helen Hill, and a 3-year-old daughter, Lauren. Funeral services will be held Sunday at 9:30 a. m. from the Hines funeral chapel, 2901 14th st. nw., with burial in Radford, Va.

FCC Grants TV Circuit Across Nation

By the United Press

The Federal Communications Commission yesterday gave American Telephone & Telegraph Co. a green light to complete the first transcontinental television circuit by January 1, 1952.

The circuit will make it possible for West Coast video fans to see "live" Eastern network TV shows for the first time while Easterners will get the benefit of shows originating in Hollywood and other Western cities.

At present, programs originating on one coast can be seen on the other only via the kinescope, or film rebroadcast, method.

FCC authorized A. T. & T. to build 55 microwave relay stations to "bounce" TV signals between Omaha and San Francisco.

The $17,900,000 project will bridge the last major gap in the proposed transcontinental microwave relay system.

FCC also authorized A. T. & T. to spend $2,500,000 for additional equipment on the Chicago-Omaha lap of the system. This section is planned to be in operation by next April.

The New York to Chicago portion is nearly completed and is expected to be available for intercity network service within a few weeks.

Radio Hams To Practice

Ham radio operators of the area will participate this weekend in the fourteenth annual Nationwide radio amateurs' 24-hour "field day."

While essentially a practice session in which batteries or generators will be used to power transmitters and receivers, as would be the case in a real emergency, the field day is also a contest in contacting the largest number of other operators.

Individual operators as well as groups will participate. The Potomac Radio Club will have some 40 hams operating at Fort Meade, Md., while the field installation of the Capital Suburban Radio Club will be set up at the Takoma Park American Legion Home near White Oak, Md. Field operations will begin at 4 p. m. today.

Police Strive to Tighten Case Against GI in Bolling Slaying

Police yesterday tried to tighten the threads of their case around the 18-year-old GI who has confessed the May 27 slaying of a cab driver at Bolling Air Force Base.

Detectives were at the base questioning buddies of the suspect, Pvt. Gilbert W. Reynolds, who they say has admitted he shot Gordon C. Brown, jr., 24, during an attempted holdup.

An inquest was scheduled for 11:30 a. m. Monday in Brown's death but it will be only a formality. Lieut. Richard Felber of the homicide squad said police will introduce only three witnesses

Flush-Deck Ship For Navy's Planes Still Is Far Off

Admiral Forrest P. Sherman said yesterday the Navy is stressing modernization of its present-day aircraft carriers—while hoping that its next new one will be a flush-deck vessel capable of handling the larger and faster planes of the near future.

Sherman, chief of naval operations, told an interviewer that the flush-deck project which Defense Secretary Johnson halted last year "is a matter of continuing consideration by the Navy."

But he said there is no prospect for such a vessel, either new or a reconverted one, in the next fiscal year or the one starting July 1, 1951.

A Truly Full Week

McNeill and Club Really Keep Busy

By C. E. Butterfield

NEW YORK (AP).—Don McNeill and his ABC breakfast club are having a full week on their current New York visit before vacation.

As a starter after he had stirred things up by signing a new contract with the network — the announcement called it the longest yet because of the 20 years covered—Don went out to a press luncheon, then got ready to do his Tuesday morning program from the deck of the aircraft carrier Enterprise in New York harbor.

Don Amache

With the next three broadcasts billed from a Broadway theater studio, Don will wind up Friday with a show from the liner Queen Mary. That one will start the 18th consecutive year of his broadcasting career, which he says looks as if it could go on forever what with three sons as prospective successors. Don, his wife and family then will sail on the Queen Mary for a six-weeks European vacation.

Don Amache will do the master of ceremony role while McNeill is off the air, which will be eight weeks altogether. When he returns he expects to look seriously into television with the idea of using the breakfast club staff in a nighttime ABC-TV show once a week.

Hashknife Hartley to Debut

MBS, which doesn't have as many programs as other networks for which summer replacements are required, has just about completed its short list with a couple of additions. One is Hashknife Hartley, a Western drama, to go in for Juvenile Jury on July 2 for 14 weeks.

The other is an additional Vincent Lopez series for 9:30 Thursday nights in the time vacated by Mr. Feathers, a skit, which is moving up an hour to fill in for Sports for All, now off the air. Lopez, whose radio career started in the early 20's, still is extremely active, including five television shows a week on Dumont.

MORE and more the 10-inch television receiver is disappearing from the scene as additional new models show up. Philco, which now has 34 different types, reports that the picture sizes range from 12½ inches to 20. They include three with rectangular tubes, 14, 17 and 20 inches. This tube is said to have certain advantages over the round, principally more compact receivers.

Inner Sanctum Revival

INNER SANCTUM, recently discontinued by the sponsor who had presented it so long on CBS, is to be revived through the purchase of the program rights by ABC. Its new schedule begins July 13. Sanctum, which specializes in eerie type mysteries, started on the ABC (then the Blue) network in 1941, later moving to CBS.

MBS, hoping to avoid "open date" blank spots in its game-of-the-day big league baseball schedule, has decided to relay occasional recordings of games previously played These will be complete play by play accounts.

The network said the plan was being adopted to meet listener requests for baseball even on this delayed basis when no "live" games are available.

MBS reports it has made "exclusive arrangements" to broadcast with the help of short wave relay, the second attempt at English Channel swimming by Shirley May France, 17-year-old Somerset, Mass., high school lass, scheduled for some time in July.

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Ben's Passengers Get De Luxe Service

Frances Scafide of this newspaper's Accounting Department reports that Diamond Cab Driver Ben Elliott is really on the ball.

Each passenger entering his hack is handed a newspaper and is greeted with a cheery: "Good morning, have a copy of this morning's Washington Post."

Tell me—where but in Washington do you find this breed of cab drivers?

FOR BALL FANS ONLY

Ham Dow of 600 Easley st., Silver Spring, Md., wants me to use my influence with Shirley Povich in behalf of what appears to be an excellent idea.

Frankly, I doubt that I have any influence with Povich. He is always my opponent in our City Room vs. Sports Department golf matches, and though I plead and plead with him to miss those 3-foot putts, he never pays any attention to me.

Nevertheless, maybe we can interest Shirley in Ham's idea. It has to do with a change in the traditional manner of listing baseball statistics.

The Boston Red Sox, he points out, are miles ahead in team batting. And they also lead in team fielding. So a Bosox rooter might be forgiven for wondering why they're currently wallowing around in fourth place.

Obviously, team batting and fielding records don't tell the whole story. The rest of the tale is pitching.

In this department, Ham finds that Detroit pitchers have given up 434 hits, and Yankee twirlers have been touched for 388. But Boston moundsmen have ducked 479 times as enemy batsmen rifled the ball past them into safe territory.

Even more striking is a comparison of the walks given up by pitchers for the three clubs. Tiger flingers have walked 145 opposing hitters. The Yankee hill corps has issued 219 free tickets to first. But Boston fans have groaned 258 times as their pitchers missed the plate with Ball Four. And "a walk is as good as a hit."

That, says Ham, undoubtedly explains what's wrong with the Red Sox—yet you seldom hear such statistics mentioned. (What's actually wrong with the Bostons is that I picked them to win the pennant. But we won't mention that, either.)

GIVE-AWAYS

"Three sweet, healthy 3-week-old kittens. (Lincoln 3-2597.)

"Darling 6-week-old kitten; also part-Persian 9-week-old kitten." (Kenmore 3-5865.)

"Two 7-week-old kittens; will deliver." (Wisconsin 9523.)

"Seven-week-old kitten, an adorable lady; will deliver." (Glebe 7720.)

"Three cute, fat kittens." (Lawrence 6-6889.)

"Black male shepherd puppy, 10 weeks old, wants home with farmer or dairyman." (Victor 0015 after 6 p. m.)

"Four 8-week-old kittens, will deliver in Bethesda." (Oliver 5460.)

LIFE IS SO COMPLICATED

Would you like to make things a bit easier for poor old Bill, who spends a full day each week in checking out Give-Away items?

You can do it by clipping this item and saving it for future reference. Even if you don't own a pet, you may some day want to give away magazines, clothing, or something else that's cluttering up your precious storage space.

Here are the rules for Give-Aways:

We cannot accept them by telephone. Send them in by mail.

List your name, address and telephone number, and do not abbreviate your telephone exchange. The Washington area now has almost a hundred exchanges, many beginning with the same two letters.

Names and addresses are never published; all items must be accompanied by a phone number.

Please don't ask me to get you a pedigreed cocker spaniel. I can't find enough room for Give-Aways, let alone lists of things people would like to have.

If you can accept calls only at certain hours, include that information.

If you want your item to run on a certain date, say so. But mail your request at least three days before you want it to appear.

Have a heart and write legibly. My crystal ball is worn out.

AND "R.S.V.P." DOES NOT MEAN THAT IT'S FORMAL

State laws and modern customs being what they are, many a festive announcement in recent years has included the hint: "B. Y. O. L."

The letters are almost universally recognized as indicating that strong drink will be permitted on the premises, but not served. So "Bring Your Own Liquor."

But Utha Gray Smith of 207 S. Alfred st., Alexandria, Va., discovers that you've got to spell things out for some folks.

The Florida State Society's free chicken dinner announcements for today carried a "B. Y. O. L." reminder, and several members have called Miss Smith to inquire:

"If we're getting a free chicken dinner, why do you say 'Bring Your Own Lunch'?"

OVERHEARD

"Nonsense. Who'd steal a face like that?"

Wood Keyed to U. S. Job Award

By Drew Pearson

In fairness to Congressman John S. Wood of Georgia, here is the gist of his reply after I reported that his office had exacted a $1000 fee from a crippled boy hit by an Army truck after a bill was passed by Congress giving him relief for his injuries.

PEARSON

"Pearson is an archliar, a scandalmonger, a character assassin, a rogue, villain and slanderer," the Congressman told his colleagues on the floor of the House of Representatives.

"Pearson's stock in trade consists of a wicked heart, a lying tongue and a poisonous pen.

"To him there is nothing in the heavens that is sacred. He befouls and means to befoul everything he touches. He occupies the unique and unenviable position today of standing alone at the very pinnacle of all slanderers and scandalmongers in all American history."

Fee Was Satisfactory

Congressman Wood also admitted that his assistant, Carl Tallent, did accept a fee of $1000 from Ralph Stanfield, the boy who was hit by an Army truck. But in justification, the Congressman obtained an affidavit from the boy's father stating that he was "satisfied."

The elder Stanfield gave this affidavit only after his employer, Jack Chappel, manager of the Georgia Marble Co., to whom Stanfield owes his job, personally drove him to the Congressman's office. But regardless of any pressure, the fact that Stanfield, a resident of a small Georgia town and ignorant of the law, was "satisfied," makes no difference and the fact that Carl Tallent, paid $7000 a year by the Government to serve as Wood's assistant, accepted the fee, makes no difference.

Congressman Wood knew what the law was and he knew that it is a criminal offense for his office to accept such a fee. He also knew that a member of Congress is paid by the Government to work for all the people and he cannot take extra pay from one individual person.

Now let's examine Wood's record further and see who is really the villain.

A Congressman is supposed to award mail routes on merit, not because of any fees, whether direct or indirect. Yet I have an affidavit signed by Weldon C. Bennett of Canton, Ga., which states that he took an examination for rural mail carrier in June of 1949, and two weeks later went to see C. B. (Butch) Holcombe, secretary to Congressman Wood, regarding his standing on the eligibility list.

"I offered C. B. (Butch) Holcombe $1500 for said route," continues the affidavit. "Mr. Holcombe then stated that the offer was not high enough. He stated, however, that if it could be arranged at that price, I could contact him later. I made this offer with the understanding that Mr. Holcombe was the 'go-between' for John S. Wood."

Holcombe is the congressional secretary who originally approached the elder Stanfield asking for a fee in connection with the compensation bill for Ralph Stanfield.

Two other affidavits are signed by Ralph Clark, jr., of Flowery Branch, Ga., and Harold W. Puckett of Buford, Ga., stating that in September, 1949, Congressman Wood told them quite frankly that he was awarding the mail route at Flowery Branch to Homer Reeves because of the large fee, he, Wood, had received in connection with a lawsuit brought by Reeves' father in breaking the will of the late Dr. George Bryce.

Reeves stood sixth on the list of eligibles. Yet Congressman Wood told those who were nearer the top of the list that, because of a large legal fee paid him in a lawsuit involving another applicant, they would be passed over. The Congressman at least was frank.

While on the floor of Congress, a Congressman is also supposed to remain clear-headed. What he does at home is his business. But what he does in Congress is the Nation's business. His vote, his decisions on matters of state affect millions of people.

In May, 1949 Congressman Wood introduced what was known as "the Wood bill," a substitute for the Taft-Hartley bill. This was most important legislation. It affected scores of labor unions and millions of workmen.

But when the time came for the final debate on the Wood bill, former Speaker Joe Martin and Congressman Charles Halleck of Indiana, two Republicans, substituted for him in arguing for his bill.

When the final vote came, Wood managed to appear on the House floor to vote, though he could hardly make it, and immediately thereafter retired to a couch in the Democratic cloakroom.

The Congressman's so-called personal "eccentricities" would not have been mentioned by me, had he not asked for it. But the voting public has a right to know about them. It also has a right to know about Wood's personal servant on the pay roll of the Un-American Activities Committee, who actually worked in the Wood home. Finally, it has a right to know about his failure to investigate Hollywood after his close Georgia-lawyer friend, Ed Dunlap, received a lush fee from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Taken together, these attributes and incidents form a picture of a man who, as chairman of the Un-American Activities Committee, is supposed to be a pillar of good Americanism and an example to the Nation. The conclusion is inescapable that he isn't.

South Africa's Red Ban Passes by Single Vote

Capetown, South Africa, June 23 (AP).—By the narrowest of margins, the South African Senate today passed a bill to outlaw communism. The final vote was 18 to 18, but the Senate President voted for the bill to break the tie.

The lower house of Parliament has passed the bill through two readings. It will be adopted on third reading.
